NOMINATION MEETING.

Lennox Liberals Nominate Mr. M. S. Madole as Their Candidate.

M. S. MADOLE,
Liberal Candidate for Lennox.

The town hall was well filled on Thursday afternoon with an enthusiastic gathering of liberals, gathered to nominate a candidate to contest the riding in the coming Provincial election. Mr. H. B. Sherwood, president of the Liberal Association called the meeting to order and after outlining the purpose of the gathering and making a short address on the coming campaign, called for nominations for a candidate to represent the Liberals of Lennox.

The following gentlemen were nominated: Messrs. R. W. Longmore, Camden East; Chas. Anderson, Overton; M. S. Madole, Napanee, and C. W. Neville, Switzerville. Short addresses were delivered by Messrs. T. Symington and W. T. Gibbard in behalf of the candidates nominated and also by the candidates nominated. Messrs. Longmore, Neville and Anderson, expressed themselves as being willing to retire in favor of Mr. M. S. Madole and the gathering, by a standing vote, unanimously chose Mr. M. S. Madole as the Liberal standard bearer.

Mr. Madole accepted the nomination as a compliment at the hands of his fellow citizens and in a rousing address dispensed the questions and issues of the present campaign. Mr. Madole paid a high tribute to the sterling worth of the Liberal Leader, Mr. N. W. Rowell.

Every polling division in the country was well represented and from the many encouraging reports received Mr. Madole's chances for election seem exceedingly bright. Mr. Madole as a concluding request asked that the Liberals do all in their power to help him win the coming election.

Already seventeen applications have been made for divorce at the coming session of parliament.

Dr. Stowe-Gullen, Toronto, addressed a letter to the political leaders again asking for the extension of the franchise to women.

In the Los Angeles election on December 5th, there will be 56,527 women qualified to vote, according to registration figures just given out.

An unusually severe winter is predicted by a hunter and trapper, who says fat is thick on the black snakes' back and this is a good sign.

Smallpox is increasing in the province of Quebec, and has already assumed a state of epidemic in many places, especially in St. Maurice district and in L'Islet county.

Those who wrote letters on Saturday and dated them "11, 11 11" will appreciate the fact that they were taken advantage of an opportunity that will not come again in 100 years. Saturday was Nov. 11th, 1911, or the eleventh day of the eleventh month of the year 1911.

The C. N. R. has begun construction of the last link of the Ottawa to Toronto line. Workmen have begun the laying of the steel rails beyond Hurdman's bridge about a mile and three-quarters from the centre of Ottawa and not far from the C. N. R. temporary station. The connecting link is to be built from that city to Sydenham. Mr. J. P. Mularkey, the well-known contractor, who has the contract for the construction of the road is now in Ottawa superintending the work from that end. The distance from there to Sydenham is 90 miles, and the rails will be laid from the Ottawa end first over the road which is practically all graded. "We shall have the contract complete within a year," says Mr. Mularkey, and this will mean that the line from Ottawa to Toronto will be ready for business. He says from Trenton to Sydenham the trains will run over the old Bay of Quinte road. About 1,300 men are rushing the work and when it is finished the shortest line from the Capital to the Queen city will be in operation. Sir William MacKenzie, president of the C. N. R., says that within twelve months the road will be running into a station in the centre of Ottawa.

John Watts, of Yarker, was out hunting and captured a fine black bear. Those in company got a deer each.

H. B. Purcell, game and fishery inspector is out in the back country on duty.

Seymour Ball is spending a few days with his uncle, Robert Hagerty, at Morven.

Mrs. Charles Ferguson and daughter of Watertown are visiting at J. M. Grey's.

Mrs. Norton Guess and Mrs. Charles Lee, returned to their home in Syracuse.

Mrs. Chatterson, of Wellington is visiting at John Clarke's, Petworth.

J. C. Sutton is on the sick list, but he is improving slowly.

Helen Wallace was calling on Helen Shangraw.

Mrs. Everton Shangraw has returned from Queensboro after a two weeks visit with her parents.

The ground is frozen so hard that the farmers cannot plow.

YARKER.

At a large and representative meeting of the ratepayers of Yarker school section, held Monday night, in the school house, it was decided to accept the offer of $1,500 from the C.N.R., and build a new school house. The present school house and land will remain in the possession of the ratepayers and will be offered for sale. This offer is given by the C.N.R. in lieu of a sub-way.

Calvin Locke, after a year's absence has returned to Yarker.

The survey to-day would indicate a new Methodist church.

John Watt returned from his annual hunting tour last Saturday. He secured his deer, but he surprised his friends by bringing, as the result of his hunt, the largest black bear ever seen. It stood seven feet high and weighed six hundred pounds. The bear is a fine specimen, not a gray or white hair on him. Mr. Watt was out on Bruley Lake in his boat. He saw the bear on a hill, making his way to the water at the narrows. He laid down in his boat, and the bear had taken to the water to swim across. When it had got far enough from the shore Mr. Watt fired, hitting it in the head. He towed it to shore and there being no one to hold him, he had to go in the water himself and roll the bear out. Twenty minutes later Mr. Watt sighted a deer and killed it.

Rev. Mr. McMullen was at Mountain Grove Sunday conducting missionary services.

Miss Ruth Lampkins has resigned as junior teacher here, and has accepted a fine position at Nasmith's, in Toronto. Miss McKnight, of Boblin, has been engaged as teacher for the balance of the term.

F. Benjamin secured his deer: he reports more hunters than deer.

William Rossetti, foreman on the rock excavation on the C.N.R. here, was injured by having a heavy rock roll on him.

Little Harry Stewart undertook to drive a horse and wagon between a car and the station platform. He drove against the platform with such force that the horse left the rig, pulling Harry over the dashboard, striking his head on the road. He was somewhat stunned, but recovered.

John Warner is on the sick list.

Miss May Warner has returned to Toronto.

DESERONTO.

Anyone meeting Mr. John Cannon might get the idea from the appearance of his face, that he had been engaging in a little exercise in the squared circle, but those who know him best know that would be very much against his principles. Last week one of his horses took violently ill, and while attending the animal it kicked him in the face just below the eye, causing a wound which required five stitches to close up. He is congratulating himself that he was not kicked in a vital spot.

During the windstorm of Monday,

Clark Watson was enjoying his first sleigh ride early on Wednesday morning behind a husky young colt belonging to Mr. Thomas Stewart. All went well until he started to come down Centre street from Dundas, when the colt started to go faster than the law allows, and left the light sleigh a bundle of sticks near Henry Howard's house. Master Watson, we under-

SILLSVILLE.

The farmers have been finishing their fall ploughing, but some hadn't completed when the ground froze up Monday of this week, but they are hoping for a thaw e'er winter sets in.

Wells are dry, many of them yet, and have been since the drought in mid-summer.

The bay froze for several yards out Monday night and consequently the ducks were driven farther up around the "Points" giving our neighbors at Thompson and Ruttan's points a chance for shooting.

Hurrah for the Hay Bay game law of this season, which allowed only three days in a week for shooting. It gave the birds time to feed and rest so that they alighted and permitted the hunter to kill them. Messrs. B.
Hawley, of Watertown, and Ira Benn, our great shot, in one day together secured fifty and several other days over thirty. This being only a sample of others' bounties.

7% GUARANTEED 7% And a Share in the Profits

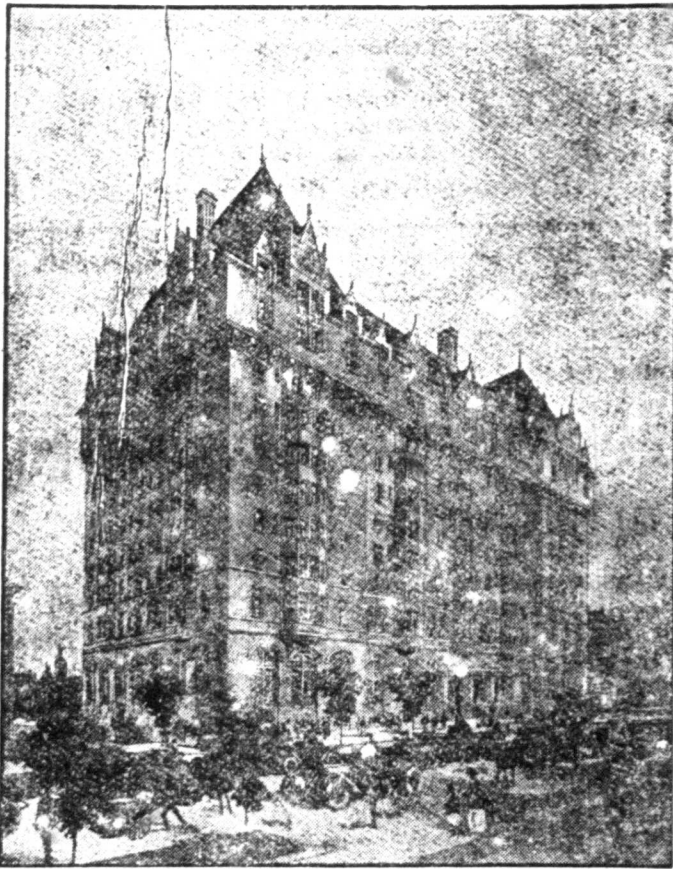

As a rule our clients get the benefit of all the "certainties" we control. To-day we are making use of "An Absolute Certainty" for the purpose of extending our clientele. Here's the proposition in a nut shell——a 7% profit-sharing preference stock on which dividends are paid twice a year—a stock issued by a concern with a record of 25 years' successful and progressive business experience—a concern at present controlling Natural Resources which are bound to double the value of its securities before long.

We guarantee 7% on this investment. We are practically certain that this stock will pay higher profits. It's the best industrial stock, at par, on the market.

Furthermore, we guarantee to buy it back at par, plus 7%, in one year from date of investment, if desired. Write at once to,

"THE FORT GARRY" HOTEL, WINNIPEG.

Adjacent to the ruins of that historic monument "Old Fort Garry," memorable in the early history of Canada's new Western metropolis is being erected "The Fort Garry," truly representative of greater Winnipeg—a magnificent edifice—to rank with the world's finest hotels, embodying in its construction the most advanced, scientific and architectural ideals. Located in the very heart of the city, to which all lines of traffic converge, it is readily accessible to the railroads and electric car lines and within a radius of a few minutes' walk will place one among the largest and most pretentious of the great stores in the center of the shopping districts, or enable one to reach the great new and cafe. The central feature of the main floor is the circular tea room of impressive and beautiful design, unbroken by column, lofty in height, and finely lighted by broad windows and circular domed ceiling.

The ball room, banquet hall and foyer have been located on the seventh floor. These rooms are of the richest of the public rooms, and have been so arranged with separate kitchen service, reception and dressing rooms, so as to in no way interfere with the privileges of the guests of the hotel. The ball room is designed in the Louis Quatorze period, and will be beyond all question one of the most striking of its kind in Canada.

The building, as a whole, will form a fine example of what modern science can do in the elimination

DRAGON FLAG IS LOWERED

Fuchow Taken--Growing Excitement in Forbidden City.

A despatch from Hong Kong, says: Canton, the capital of Kwangtung province, and the largest city in China, formally declared its independence at noon on Thursday, when the Dragon flag was lowered and a salute in honor of the new Government was fired. Canton is a manufacturing centre especially for silks, fireworks and wood and iron wares. The city's trade in 1908 exceeded $55,000,000. It has a good waterworks system, which was constructed by British engineers at a cost of over $1,500,000, and also an electric lighting system. The city has now a population of 1,900,000 and dates back 2,700 years.

A despatch from Amoy, China, says: The city of Fuchow, capital of Fokien province, is in the hands of the revolutionists. After taking it they wiped out the entire Manchu district. The foreign settlements have not been disturbed, but fires have broken out in several sections of the native city, threatening its destruction. Fuchow is one of the most important cities in the south, having a population of 700,000. It is a great commercial centre, and the seat of a naval arsenal, Government shipyards, a mint, a school of navigation and a large drydock.

A despatch from Peking, says: The excitement is growing. The residents of the Forbidden City are taking in great quantities of rice and other stores. Fifteen hundred infantry and 500 cavalry of the Manchu First Division, who fled from Shikia, after the assassination of General Wu Lu Cheng, arrived here on Thursday and entered the city. The Legations consider that all hope for the Manchu dynasty has vanished.

Zam-Buk Is A Sure Cure.

Mr. Jas. Davey, of 786 Ellice Avenue, Winnipeg, says:—"A few months since I was cured of a poisoned finger through the timely use of Zam-Buk."

"I cut a deep gash across the knuckle on the first finger of my right hand in opening a lobster can. I suffered at the time with the soreness and pain, but had no idea it would become a serious wound. However, in about two days my whole hand and arm to the elbow became inflamed, and the finger was much discolored, showing signs of blood-poisoning."

"I then decided to start the Zam-Buk treatment, and having first bathed the cut, I applied the healing balm. It soothed the pain almost instantly."

"In a week's time, through perseverance with Zam-Buk, a complete cure was brought about."

Zam-Buk is just as good for eczema, ulcers, scalp sores, abscesses, piles, ringworm, boils, varicose ulcers, running sores, cold sores, chapped hands, etc. Use it, too, for cuts, burns, bruises and all skin injuries. Zam-Buk Soap should be used in conjunction to the balm for washing wounds and sore places. Excellent too for baby's bath.

All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box and Zam-Buk Soap at 25c. tablet. Post free for price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

FIRE IN REGINA.

American Abell Company Suffers Loss of $160,000.

A despatch from Regina, Sask., says: One hundred and sixty thousand dollars is the estimated damage done by fire which on Wednesday night gutted the large warehouse of the American Abell Thresher & Engine Company. The

MAKING SAFE INVESTMENTS

SOME FEATURES OF INVESTING IN MUNICIPAL BONDS.

Safety of This Form of Security, Deservedly Popular in Canada, is very High Class—Danger only in Communities Where Population is Decreasing—Legal Investigation Necessary, But This Always Done by Purchasing Bond House—Western School Issues are Safe.

The articles contributed by "Investor" are for the sole purpose of guiding prospective investors, and, if possible of saving them from losing money through placing it in "wild-cat" enterprises. The impartial and reliable character of the information may be relied upon. The writer of these articles and the publisher of this paper have no interests to serve in connection with this matter other than those of the reader.

By those who value safety above all other investment qualities, Canadian municipal bonds are held in very (and deservedly) high esteem. In all the history of Canada there have been so few cases of repudiation of municipal obligations that this danger—always present in the case of United States cities—may be entirely ignored.

The great safety of municipal bonds has naturally resulted in these returning a small yield, and so we have the securities of the City of Toronto selling to yield the investor less than four per cent.—a price well above that at which New York city bonds sell.

A municipal bond, however, cannot be purchased with safety by one entirely unacquainted with the bond business. The primary investigation into an issue of any municipality is, of course, to see whether or not the town or city has power to issue such bonds, and then it is necessary to determine whether all the necessary legal formulae have been followed in passing the necessary by-laws, etc. These investigations are usually carried on on behalf of the purchasers by a lawyer skilled in this sort of work, and a few minutes' walk will place one among the largest and most pretentious of the great stores in the center of the shopping districts, or enable one to reach the great new terminal station of the Grand Trunk Pacific.

"The Fort Garry" to be constructed by the Grand Trunk Pacific will be built of the finest of Canadian granite and buff lime stone, in the style of the old French Chateaux of Normandy and Touraine and will rear its stately heights to fourteen stories. The building is to have approximately three hundred and fifty sleeping chambers and will be richly furnished in faultless taste. All its bedrooms are to be equipped with every approved modern appointment. Nothing that would in any way contribute to the comfort and welfare of its guests has been overlooked in the preparation of the plans and interior arrangements.

The main entrance of the hotel faces on Winnipeg's most beautiful thoroughfare, "Broadway," and opens upon a spacious and imposing rotunda, which will suggest in its decoration and refinement the cheer and comfort provided within its walls, and from which one may enter the spacious dining, tea rooms kind in Canada.

The building, as a whole, will form a fine example of what modern science can do in the elimination of fire risk. Every girder, beam and rafter is to be of non-expansive steel, every partition of terra cotta, every floor of marble tile or cement, and the stairways of iron. It is to be absolutely fireproof, and while every precaution has been taken to insure absolute protection to life and property, an equal measure of attention has been devoted to its sanitation and the safeguarding of health.

The bathrooms are to be models of sanitation and simplicity and are to be equipped with porcelain fittings and finished in exquisite tile work. They are of comfortable size, and so placed as to be in direct communication with every bedchamber in the hotel.

There is not to be a dark or uninviting chamber in the entire building, and comfort and spaciousness have not been sacrificed to secure a maximum of accommodation. Large closets have been provided in every bedchamber, and in the suites there are commodious clothes presses equipped throughout with every modern device.

HAY SHORTAGE IN BRITAIN.

Opportunity for Canadian Exporters to Extend Connection.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The Department of Trade and Commerce has received a cable from the Canadian High Commissioner containing the information that the Board of Agriculture will shortly issue returns indicating that the hay and root crops of Great Britain were only 75 per cent. of the usual total. Consequently feed will be very scarce this winter. Canadian hay was selling for 90s to 95s per ton, with prospects of a further rise. Canada and the United States are practically the only outside sources of supply, as the imports from all European countries are prohibited owing to foot and mouth disease. Belgium has made inquiries in the United Kingdom for supplies, and it is quite probable that other European countries are also short in their expected supply.

LUMBER IMPORTATIONS.

Ruling of Customs Board Aimed at Alleged Evasions.

A despatch from Ottawa says: An alleged evasion of the Customs act is aimed at in a ruling of the Dominion Customs Board on Friday in regard to lumber importations. Lumber dressed on one side only comes in free, but when also dressed on the edge it is subject to a duty of twenty-five per cent. The Canadian Lumbermen's Association claims that the Americans after dressing the lumber on the side and edge afterwards roughen the latter slightly to qualify under the free classification. Collectors are instructed to closely inspect all shipments and apply the duty to lumber edged in any way in addition to being dressed on one side.

ONTARIO'S SUBSIDY GROWS.

Payment by Federal Government Will Increase Next Year.

A despatch from Toronto says: Ontario's subsidy from the Federal Government will be increased by $270,000 as a result of the growth of population shown by the recent census. As the population now exceeds 2,500,000, however, the rate of payment will be reduced from 80 cents to 60 cents a head. Until 1907 the subsidy was paid at the rate of 80 cents a head on the basis of the population in 1901. At the Provincial Conference of 1907, however, it was arranged that the subsidy should always be calculated upon the population as indicated by the last previous census. Until the present it has been paid on the number of people in Ontario in 1901. The increased subsidy will be paid for the first time next year.

and sold dollars is the estimated damage done by fire which on Wednesday night gutted the large warehouse of the American Abell Thresher & Engine Company. The fire had apparently been going for some time when it was discovered. The whole building was enveloped when the fire brigade reached the scene and their efforts were directed towards saving adjoining houses on either side of the doomed property. The conflagration was the most spectacular seen in the city for years. The entire contents of the building were destroyed, including a large number of separators and engines. The estimated damage is distributed as follows: buildings, $10,000; separators and engines, $60,000; repairs, $100,000.

ZERO WEATHER IN DAKOTA.

Much Wheat and Flax in Fields Yet Unthreshed.

A despatch from Minot, N.D., says: Threshing in North-western North Dakota, where thousands of acres of flax and wheat lie in the fields unthreshed, is at a standstill as the result of the heavy fall of snow. The thermometer on Friday morning registered 9 degrees below zero, which is said to be a new record for this time of the year in the State.

TRADE WITH SOUTH AMERICA

Direct Steamship Line and Trade Agents Promised.

A despatch from Montreal says: George F. Johnston, who has been working to arouse the Canadian manufacturers to go after the trade of South America, is back from Ottawa with the assurance from the Minister of Trade and Commerce that, if the merchants show that they are after the trade, he will provide a direct South American steamship service, and will appoint a trade commissioner in each of the South American countries.

VEGETABLE DIET BEATS MEAT

Brothers Demonstrate the Relative Value of Foods.

A despatch from Denver, Col., says: That vegetables are more nourishing than meat is being made evident by Jesse Buffum and Warren H. Buffum, brothers, who are walking across the continent as an experiment under the direction of Harvard University. They proceeded from here on their journey toward the Pacific Coast on Wednesday. One is eating meat and the other vegetables. They arrived in Denver on Tuesday night and slept on the roof of a local hotel. They have not slept in a bed since they started from Boston, they say. When they started west there was only three pounds difference in their weights. Warren Buffum, the vegetable eater, is now fifteen pounds heavier than his brother.

There is More Money in It Than in Wheat.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: A serious shortage of milk exists about the city. The Health and Food Department is advising farmers that they can make more money out of milk than they can out of wheat.

necessary legal forms have been followed in passing the necessary by-laws, etc. These investigations are usually carried on on behalf of the purchasers by a lawyer skilled in this sort of work, and are a very necessary feature in order to prevent loss; for were the bonds issued illegally it is quite possible that by the time they were due the mistake would have been discovered and then it would be illegal for the municipality to redeem them. Of course, in most instances, the necessary legal machinery would be operated to overcome this difficulty, but it might happen that in some cases the citizens would be glad of an excuse for not paying the bill. Hence the care al-

A BOND

IS A FIRST MORTGAGE

A bond is a first mortgage split up into denominations of one hundred dollars and upwards. Bonds are a comparatively modern form of investment. Previously a corporation or undertaking desiring to raise money against their assets was required to place it in one or several large mortgages.

Nowadays an issue of bonds is made instead.

Bonds are a convenient form of mortgage, and those bonds which we offer are thoroughly investigated to determine that the payment of interest and principal is absolutely assured.

We have literature more fully describing bonds in general as well as specific issues, which we will be glad to send upon application. Send for it.

ways exercised. It is for this reason that in all circular advertisements of municipal bonds you will note, under each issue advertised, the words, "Legal opinion of a Lawyer," which means that the said lawyer has passed on the legality of the issue.

Municipal bonds are secured by the taxable property in the municipality—they are, in fact, an indirect first lien upon such property. The interest and final repayment is met out of taxes, and the obligation of the municipal bond is legally enforceable before all other mortgages or other liens. It is this that makes the bond so safe, for it is only in the case of the utter destruction of a municipality, or its diminution in population to a vanishing point, that there is danger of loss. The only recent cases of this sort occurred when Campbellton, N. B., and Cochrane, Ont., were wiped out by fire. But the respective Provincial Governments stepped in and prevented loss to the bond holders by guaranteeing the interest for a sufficient time to enable these towns to get on their feet once more.

Therefore, as regards safety, the Canadian municipal bond that is legally issued, and, of course, for a proper purpose, stands in an exceptionally high plane, provided, of course, it is not issued by a community that is rapidly declining in population or—as in the case of a mining town—one in which this may occur at any time.

In the case of some western rural communities and growing towns and villages there is a strong tendency to over-estimate the town's future, so that there is possible a danger of over-valuing the property of the town, and so "boosting" the assessment. Moreover, many of these towns are in the mining camp stage—in danger of being vacated by the population if something more promising turns up elsewhere. These issues, however, are small and seldom handled by reputable bond dealers, as bond dealers are very jealous of their reputations.

In the case of Western Canadian school districts the security is in no such possible danger. The security is farm land and the issue, like all municipal issues, is limited to a small proportion of the value of the taxable property. In the

BRITAIN TRUSTS CANADA

Foreign Secretary Leaves to Dominion Question of Rush-Bagot Treaty.

A despatch from London says: Sir Edward Grey, Foreign Secretary, replied in the negative to Rowland Hunt, M.P.'s, question in the Commons on Wednesday as to whether he was aware the United States were making a naval station on Lake Michigan, and whether this was a breach of the Rush-Bagot treaty, and whether any communication had been received from the Canadian Government concerning the United States still continuing to break in threefold the Bagot treaty.

Sir Edward Grey added:—"I cannot make any promise about this matter without an opportunity for communication with the Canadian Government. Their interests are mainly affected by any question connected with the Rush-Bagot treaty. I would deprecate being pressed for answers to this House which I would have to give without consultation with the Canadian Government, with whom I am keeping in the closest touch."

Mr. Hunt—Will the Right Hon. gentleman inquire of the Canadian Government whether the statement is a fact?

Sir Edward Grey—The Canadian Government will keep us fully informed of their wishes.

Mr. Hunt—Will or will not the Right Hon. gentleman call the attention of the Canadian Government to the matter and ask whether they are willing that the treaty should be broken?

Sir Edward Grey—No, sir. I propose to leave to the Canadian Government the initiative in matters which concern directly its own interest, and to show our regard for our desire to act in harmony, sympathy and co-operation with them by not making statements about what they may or may not wish.

COFFEE HEART

As Dangerous as the Tobacco or Whiskey Heart.

"Coffee heart" is common to many coffee users and is liable to send the owner to his or her long home if the drug is persisted in. You can run 30 or 40 yards and find out if your heart is troubled. A lady who was once a victim of the "coffee heart" writes from Oregon:

"I have been a habitual user of coffee all my life and have suffered very much in recent years from ailments which I became satisfied were directly due to the poison in the beverage, such as torpid liver and indigestion, which in turn made my complexion blotchy and muddy.

"Then my heart became affected. It would beat most rapidly just after I drank my coffee, and go below normal as the coffee effect wore off. Sometimes my pulse would go as high as 137 beats to the minute. My family were greatly alarmed at my condition and at last mother persuaded me to begin the use of Postum.

"I gave up coffee entirely and absolutely, and made Postum my sole table beverage. This was 6 months ago, and all my ills, the indigestion, inactive liver and rickety heart action, have passed away, and my complexion has become clear and natural. The improvement set in very soon after I made the change, just as soon as the coffee poison had time to work out of my system.

"My husband has also been greatly benefited by the use of Postum, and we find that a simple breakfast with Postum, is as satisfying and more strengthening than the old heavier meal we used to have with coffee."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

$13,000,000 OFFERED.

J. R. Booth Company Will Not Sell to English Syndicate.

A despatch from Ottawa says: An offer of $13,000,000 as the purchase price for the business of the J. R. Booth Company made by an English syndicate of capitalists has been refused. The price, it is understood, included the good-will of the mammoth business controlled by J. R. Booth, the water-power of Chaudiere Falls, the timber limits, and, in short, every asset owned by the firm. In financial circles it is said that the syndicate desirous of getting the Booth plant is headed by Sir Max Aitken, the young Canadian, who is a member of the British Parliament. A member of the firm on Monday confirmed the offer, but said it would not be accepted.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Many hints have reached this country about Berlin's (Germany) big experiment in uniting sewage disposal with municipal farming. A demonstration of the complete success of the scheme was given the other day when the manager of this striking enterprise took out a large excursion party to make an inspection.

The 290,000 daily cubic meters of Berlin's sewage have converted a sandy waste into a beautiful and profitable agricultural area. Throughout this tract intensive farming is carried on upon a large scale, and small fortunes have already been made by tenants who have taken up sections of this well-irrigated land. Twelve thousand cows pasture on the luxuriant grass and provide the city's milk supply. There is even a lake in which carp noted for their fine flavor are grown.

The vast volume of sewage is subjected to treatment which renders it perfectly odorless and innocuous. Already the meats, fruits and vegetables raised on this area suffice to supply the needs of all the city's hospitals and similar public institutions. Thus what elsewhere is commonly an offense and an expense has been turned by Berlin into an advantage and a profit. The municipality not only gets rid of its waste but actually turns it into a saving for the benefit of the taxpayers.

Surely no more legitimate and instructive "sight" can be taken in by the thoughtful student of civic conditions than the Riesselfelder, where this wonderful transformation has been worked, and no recent municipal enterprise offers more valuable suggestions to perplexed towns in this country.

Speaking at the opening of a new library in Glasgow, Lord Rosebery recently uttered a protest against the ever-increasing accumulation of books of little or no value in libraries. The utterance must find an echo in the thoughts of every one who has had occasion to consider the subject.

"I am filled with a hideous depression at this book cemetery—cemetery because, after all, most of the books are dead," said Lord Rosebery. "There is no man who can grapple with the libraries of these days." He was right, in the sense that the rage for bigness has become fashionable among librarians, few of whom present digests of the contents of their accumulations in useful form, to their readers.

Why should every book that has been printed be included in a library? There are good reasons why

USING CEMENT IN WINTER

CONCRETE WORK IN FREEZING WEATHER.

Simple Precautions on Using It When Thermometer May be Below Zero.

Until a few years ago, although concrete had already been generally adopted throughout the country by contractors and farmers for almost all structural work, it was the practice to stop all work on this form of construction as soon as the cold weather set in.

It has been found, however, that concrete work may be carried on in cold weather successfully, and with but very little more trouble than under ordinary circumstances.

This fact is of great benefit to the farmer, as it is in the colder period of the year that he is able to find time for building and making the many articles around the farm to which concrete so readily adapts itself.

With a few simple precautions it has been found that concrete can be used, not only in freezing weather, but when the thermometer has been actually below zero.

If concrete freezes before it starts to "set" it will not be injured, but if the freezing takes place after the "setting" action has started up, the concrete is likely to be damaged when it thaws, owing to the expansion of the melting water forcing the particles apart and making the concrete crumbly. On the other hand, if the concrete has a chance to become thoroughly "set" before freezing, no harm will be done. To give it this chance you must first of all prepare the materials as described below, and secondly, you must protect the concrete after it has been placed in the "forms."

PREPARATION OF MATERIALS.

Concrete will, on its own account, develop a certain amount of heat in the "setting" process. But in cold weather, some outside assistance, in the form of artificial heat, is necessary. The best way to develop this artificial heat is to warm the materials before mixing. This shortens the time that it takes the concrete to "set" and lengthens the time necessary to bring it to the freezing point. Bear in mind that the less water used, the quicker concrete "sets." Therefore, it is advisable to use as little water as possible in the mixing during cold weather.

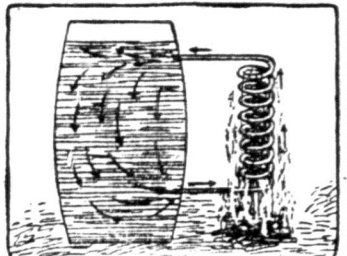

Fig. 1. Showing simple method of water heating.

HEATING WATER.

A simple and easily-made vessel for heating water is shown in the lowers the water to be constantly replenished without reducing the heat of the water in the barrel from which the hot water is taken.

Most farmers, however, possess large boiling kettles, used during butchering time, or for making soft soap, etc. One of these will do equally well.

HEATING SAND AND STONE.

Sand and stone may be very easily heated by making use of two pieces of stove pipe, one piece for the sand and the other for the stone. The pipes are laid on the ground in such a position as to allow the wind to make a good draft. The fire is then built in one end. The flames pass through, heating the whole pipe, and as fresh fuel is added, the cinders are pushed along the pipe and gradually work out at the other end. The sand and stone should be piled on top of the stove pipes, and will soon thaw out and become heated.

In very cold weather, the cement may be heated by laying the bags on top of the sand, but this is not absolutely necessary, as the cement itself must be kept dry until used, whether the weather be hot or cold.

TEMPERATURE REQUIRED.

Materials should not be heated to too high a temperature. A good way to judge the proper amount of heat is to make them just hot enough to be comfortable to touch. Care should be taken not to use any frozen lumps of sand.

PROTECTING CONCRETE IN POSITION.

After the concrete has been placed in "forms" it should be protected so as to keep the heat in as long as possible. This is more essential in thin structures than in massive walls and foundations, for the latter will hold their own heat longer on account of their thickness.

Wooden "forms" are non-conductors, and will retain the heat in the concrete up to a certain point, but the concrete should be protected on top by a covering of canvas or heavy paper, with a layer of ten or twelve inches of manure on top of this. Straw will also answer the purpose. If manure is used, care should be taken to prevent it from coming in contact with the concrete, as it will discolor it, and possibly even seep through sufficiently to weaken the structure.

PROTECTING THIN STRUCTURES.

In the case of thin walls where extra cold weather calls for additional protection, heavy paper

FEEDING THE CALF.

The subject of calf feeding never grows old. Possibly more interest is taken to-day in formulating the right ration for a calf than ever before. We have learned, says Hoard's Dairyman, that through certain combinations of feed, large, strong, vigorous calves may be grown and when the right practices are followed there is very little danger of losing a calf. Professor T. L. Haecker of the Minnesota Experiment Station has spent many years in studying the calf diet and he answers the following inquiry in Farm, Stock and Home:

"Would like a good ration for feeding young calves that must drink separated milk? Have clover hay, clover and timothy mixed, shorts, bran and oil meal."

To build body a liberal supply of protein is required and all the feeds mentioned are good for young stock and for milk production. For calves clover hay and grain mixture may be composed of two parts each of bran and shorts and one part of oil meal. It would also be well to add two parts of corn meal as it is easily digested and adds the carbohydrates needed. No matter how carefully the feed is balanced the calves will not thrive satisfactorily unless the milk is fed with great regularity as to quantity and temperature. They should also be fed out of clean pails. They should be fed in small stanchions when the milk is given. This should be followed by a little grain feed so they will not get in the habit of sucking each other's ears. They should be fed hay out of a rack so they will not get it under their feet. If calves are given only as much as they will eat up clean they will learn not to mow over and waste their feed. With properly cured feed in right quantity every thing will be cleaned up in a short time.

Recently the writer inspected the managers of 38 calves born the last week in May and in only one was there any feed left. They have always been fed in stanchions, each having its own manger and the hay, grain and silage weighed out to each calf. Everything is eaten and the manger licked clean. They have the proper habit. In another barn another lot of young things have always been fed in an open manger. One of these calves will waste more feed than the 37 fed in stanchions will waste in a week.

The writer has for thirty years made a special study of calf rearing and has made it a practice to daily personally inspect them and note their behaviour. Regularity in all things, clean mangers, clean quarters, uniformity in quantity of feed, are the fundamentals in successful animal rearing.

Soon we will have some 50 newborn calves to rear. We have choice upland prairie hay, corn, oats, bran and oil meal. We will also have a limited supply of skim milk. These feeds may seem ample, but experience has shown that it is best to have on hand blood meal and bone meal. So half a ton of the former and a ton of the latter have been added to our store of feed. A teaspoonful of blood meal in a small

Why should every book that has been printed be included in a library? There are good reasons why very many books should be allowed to die a natural death, even after they have been included among "the six best sellers." The time manifestly has come for discrimination. Edmund Gosse has pronounced himself in favor of "an enormous destruction of printed books." His words will find favor with many a user of libraries.

SOME HUMAN BOATS.

How Some Men Enjoyed a Sail in England.

When you throw a piece of wood into the water and watch how nicely it floats, has it ever occurred to you to make yourself into a boat, and to go floating about as easily and coolly as a real boat does?

This may sound very queer, but to one who has confidence in himself it is quite practicable, as was proved many years ago by Dr. Bedale, of Manchester. This gentleman, a noted long distance swimmer, was often to be seen floating about the River Mersey for hours at a time. He used to fasten a strong belt around his waist, and attach to it a light mast and sail, which he would furl or unfurl as he lay comfortably on his back, and no doubt it was very enjoyable.

This was carried a step further by another noted swimmer, Captain Boyton, who used to think nothing of sailing up and down the English Channel, clad in a dress inflated with air, and with a sail fixed to his feet. Once, indeed he actually crossed the Channel from Dover to Calais, but on this occasion he used a paddle with which to steer himself.

LIGHTNING'S QUEER WAYS.

As everyone knows, it is dangerous to stand near a tree during a thunderstorm, but, if anyone is so foolish as to do it, he will do well to learn against the tree. If he does this, the charge goes in at his shoulder, burning it, and then passes down the skin along the middle of his back. Arrived at the legs, it may run along one or both. It will seriously burn the knees and other prominent parts, get out through the stockings, or bore a hole through the boots, or destroy the boots altogether. But if he stands near a tree or wall without being in contact, the stream of lightning may jump to the head bones, and cause instant death. If it doesn't do this, it will probably burn the hair and travel over the skin of the head, going down the front of the body, or getting inside it, and doing terrible damage.

advisable to use a little water as possible in the mixing during cold weather.

HEATING WATER.

A simple and easily-made vessel for heating water is shown in the accompanying drawing. (See Fig. 1.) A coil is made of one-inch pipe with the ends fastened in the barrel and made water-tight. A small fire built under the coil will heat the water rapidly and will keep it in circulation, thus keeping all the water heated.

For this purpose it is wise to use a length of malleable iron gas-pipe, because it is easily bent into the required coil. This is done by taking a log or fence-post about the size of the coil and bending the pipe around it. This method prevents the pipe from "buckling," and makes the coils more regular in size.

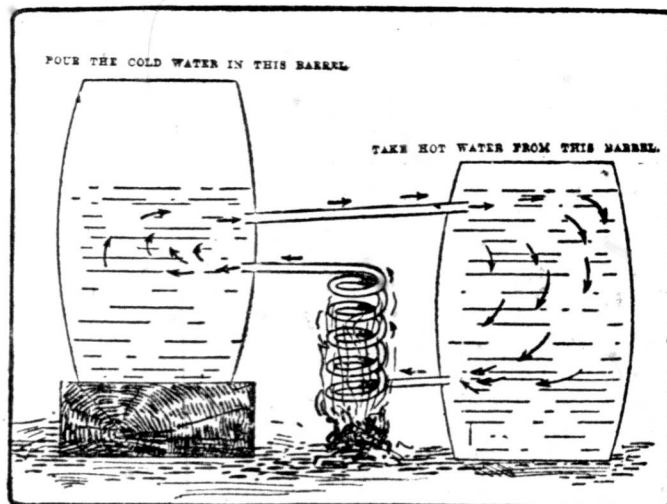

Fig. 2. Showing two-barrel method of heating water.

Where concrete work is being done on a large scale, it is advisable to use the two-barrel heater shown in Fig. 2. This al-should be nailed to the vertical posts of the forms, (see Figure 4), thus leaving an enclosed air space between each pair of posts. These air spaces will have about fifteen degrees higher temperature than the outside air. The "forms" ways should always be left on longer in cold weather, as it takes longer for the concrete to harden.

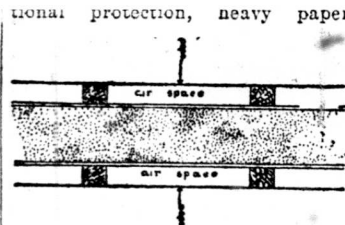

Fig. 4. Paper tacked to wooden supports to protect concrete from frost.

There is no reason why concrete cannot be used with complete success in cold weather if these simple precautions be followed.

BELL CLAPPERS OF OPIUM.

What Caused the Muffled Sound in Them.

The infinite patience of the Chinese is well illustrated in a smuggling story which I heard from an imperial maritime customs official at one of the "barriers" on the upper Yangtze, says a writer in the Wide World Magazine. The incident occurred several years ago in an attempt to avoid duty on a small amount of Szechuan opium that was headed for Shanghai.

"An important article of down river trade," said the official in question, "is the little belled and spangled cap worn by the Chinese children from 2 to 6 years of age. In passing a number of boxes of these in the spring of 1906 I chanced to notice that the tinkle from the little bell in the centre of the cap I was examining was rather muffled.

"Forcing it open, purely out of curiosity, I was astonished to find a tiny pellet of opium, hardly a quarter of an inch in diameter, which had been substituted for the clapper. Of course we had to search the whole lot, and our aggregate haul from about 5,000 caps—a couple of days work for us—was less than ten pounds of opium."

ORIGIN OF LACE MAKING.

A romantic legend is still current among the peasants of Europe concerning the origin of lace. As the story goes, a lover who could offer his betrothed no costly gift one day brought to her a leaf which he had plucked in the forest. She accepted it as a true token of love and preserved it with care. In time the lover went away—to the wars perhaps—and never returned. The maiden prized the leaf then as a sacred treasure, and when she found only the delicate veining left of her keepsake she took needle and thread and tried to copy the fairylike web. And thus was made the first bit of real lace.

MUST BE.

Mrs. Knowall (reprovingly)—Mrs. Nag told me to-day that her husband always keeps her photograph on his office desk.

Mr. Knowall—I suppose that explains why he's always late getting home to dinner.

AIRY RAIMENT.

Since little Paul wrote his composition on snow, his mother hopes that he may be a poet.

"I don't really know what snow is," he began, "but I think it may be air with clothes on."

These feeds may seem ample, but experience has shown that it is best to have on hand blood meal and bone meal. So half a ton of the former and a ton of the latter have been added to our store of feed. A teaspoonful of blood meal in a small mess of milk gives satisfactory results, notwithstanding the fact that it costs $65 per ton. They also have access to a mixture of salt and bone meal, equal parts. If they grow rapidly, they need the bone for building bone. Having access to this mixture, they never get in the habit of gnawing boards and bark. Persons rearing colts also should bear this in mind. In fact, all animals in gestation should have access to it.

THE PROFIT IN A COLT.

In spite of the electric car, the automobile and other motive power, horses have increased in price commensurate with other farm animals. Every farmer should have a number of young horses growing and coming on for home use and for sale.

A colt can be grown as easily and cheaply as a calf, and at the same time the mare which mothers it will make a half team for general farm work. The writer has a team of young mares of nearly the same size and age. During this last season one of them has raised a colt now worth at least $75, while the other mare working by her side has raised none. The mare with the colt has done exactly the same work as the mare which has no colt and now at the close of the early summer's work she is in as good condition as her mate, with both on the same feed and care.

A colt, of course, is some bother and consumes some feed. The same is true in growing any domestic animals. But with a little patience in the handling of the mare and foal, a mare doing general farm work, should raise two colts every three years and do about as well as with none. The colt will represent at least 100 per cent. profit on the money and labor invested in it.

In fact, so little extra care and feed are required that the young animal can be grown without noticing the feed it consumes.

CHINA'S FINE COAST LIGHT.

One of the finest coast lights in the world for its size, has been erected by the Chinese Imperial Maritime Customs at Chilan Rock, about 80 miles north of Hongkong. The work of installation has been going on for about two years. The light can be clearly observed at a distance of 24 miles. The illuminating apparatus is group flashing of the first order, showing three white lightning flashes in quick succession every two seconds. The approximate power of the flash is 490,000 candles.

SCHOOL LESSON

GENERAL LESSON,

CHAPTER 19.

Golden Text.

Ezra 8. 22.

Verse 15. Gathered them.—The previous part of the chapter is devoted to a list of the heads of the fathers' houses, who went up with Ezra to Jerusalem. Ezra's first step was to assemble his company on the banks of one of the artificial rivers, or canals, in the neighborhood of Babylon, at a place called Ahava. This enabled him to make a review of his forces before actually beginning his march. The interval of three days, lasting from the ninth to the twelfth of the first month, gave him time to secure the services of Levites.

The sons of Levi—Zerubbabel brought back with him 4,289 priests, of whom only 74 were Levites. Ezra has difficulty in obtaining even fewer. The reason seems to have been their absorption in the service of the high places, and other forms of idolatrous worship. In the later reforms this class took a prominent place. They were chosen men of patriotic impulse and religious spirit, who were willing to sacrifice their position in order to serve God.

Verse 16. Then sent I for Eliezer.—The proposition here has a peculiar value, the meaning being, apparently, not that Ezra summons these leading men into his presence before sending them upon a definite mission, although the English says so much; but, that he actually commissioned them, on the spot, the following verse giving the details of their mission. The marginal reading of verse 17, "I gave them commandment," is in that case preferable to I sent them forth.

Verse 17. Iddo.—He held some position of authority, perhaps over the young Levites, and Nethinim (a body of temple servants who were detailed to do the more menial tasks, such as drawing water and hewing wood). At Casiphia, a small settlement in the vicinity of Babylon, there may have been a kind of college of these young men. We need not suppose, however, that Iddo belonged to this second class of mere drudgers. The text is difficult at this point. But the meaning must be that Iddo presided over all these young men, the brethren mentioned being the Levites.

Verse 18. The good hand of our God upon us.—This is a frequently occurring phrase in the chronicles of these times. It signifies the merciful favor of God. In times of adversity, the hand of God is represented as turned against his people. It is looked upon as a providential occurrence that a man of discretion (which, as the margin suggests, may be the name, Ishsehel, of this otherwise unnamed descendant of Levi), together with thirty-eight Levites and two hundred and twenty Nethinim (19 and 20), are found to accompany the Jews on their journey. Although these were all mentioned by name on the list before the writer, he does not think it worth while to take up space with their names.

two Levites, corresponding to the two groups commissioned by Ezra. The number (34) of the vessels and gifts, and the weight of the silver and gold were exactly inventoried, and the list preserved.

Verse 36. They furthered the people.—This was a new turn in events. It was a great thing to have officials like the satraps, and governors beyond the River Euphrates, helping instead of hindering. The royal decree determined everything. The king's commissions are set forth in Ezra 7. 21-24.

PEAR SCAB TREATMENT.

(By Dr. J. B. Dandeno, B. A., Bowmanville, Ont.)

Pear Scab is a very serious disease of the pear tree, ranking, perhaps, second in importance to that of the twig blight (fire blight). When pear scab gains a good start it is exceedingly difficult, if not impossible, to clean it out of the orchard, because of certain characteristics which this disease possesses. Apple scab is a relative of the pear scab, having a similar relationship to it, as beets have to mangels. Both are fungus parasites. They differ, however, in one important particular, and a knowledge of this peculiarity is essential to a successful warfare against the pear scab. This disease attacks the fruit, leaves and branches, while the apple scab attacks only the fruit and the leaves. The apple scab does not attack the pear tree, nor does the pear scab attack the apple tree, as many people suppose. Apple scab yields readily to ordinary fungicides, mainly because it grows upon the surfaces, and, therefore, can be reached with the spray liquid. Pear scab works on the twigs and small branches. It burrows under the bark and winters over largely while in this condition. Because of this habit the fungicide can not readily be applied directly to the fungus. Moreover, serious damage is done to the twigs and branches; and many of these are so "cankered" by the scab that death is the result. Pear scab is common in this locality, and much of the roughened appearance of the older branches is due to it.

Remedy.—For trees which are not seriously affected the disease can be kept well in check by spraying with lime-sulphur and bordeaux, just as for apple scab, with the addition of one application after the leaves drop in the fall. This should consist of strong lime-sulphur or of a copper sulphate solution (not bordeaux) of suitable strength. In addition to this, it would be wise to examine the trees to see if the branches become affected. If they do such branches should be pruned out and burned.

For trees whose branches are now more or less seriously affected, the pruning saw is the chief instrument. Prune out the worst, even to one-third of the total top this fall, a similar portion next fall, and the remainder of the old top the following year. By this method 60 or 70 per cent. of the orchard may be saved. During this time the orchard should also be treated with fungicides as indicated in the preceding paragraph.

Pear scab gains an entrance to the branches during their first year's growth, when they are green and delicate. After the corky bark is formed entry is made only through wounds.

DAINTY DISHES.

When serving dried peas as a vegetable have ready half a pint of carrots, cut into small dice, and boiled in salted water. Drain the peas, mix with the carrots, and a gill of white sauce to serve.

Pineapple Cream Purée.—Take the fruit from a tin of pineapple, rub through a sieve, mix with a gill of thick cream and as much lemon jelly; whisk thoroughly. Place in custard-glasses to serve.

Mexican Haricot Beans.—Soak some haricot beans, then boil till soft, place in a frying-pan with a little sage, a sliced onion, and fry all in good salad oil till a nice brown. Those who prefer to substitute butter for salad oil will have a still more tasty dish.

Carrot Jam.—Scrape the carrots and boil them till tender; then mash them, and to each pound of pulp allow three-quarters of a pound of loaf sugar, a small half teaspoonful of ginger, and to every four pounds of juice, add the grated rind of a lemon. Boil as for an ordinary preserve.

Peppermint Cordial.—Boil two pounds of loaf sugar with half a gallon of water, removing any scum which may arise. After it has boiled for ten minutes, remove from the fire, and when cold add essence of peppermint to taste. Cork well, and it is ready for use.

Coffee Cream Soufflé.—Make a pint of nice custard, add to it sufficient coffee essence to make a tasty mixture. Line a soufflé dish with paper sufficiently deep to rise three inches above the dish; fill the mould nearly to the top of the paper with the coffee cream, freeze until quite firm; remove the paper, and serve.

Mushroom sandwiches are generally appreciated. Stew a few very fresh mushrooms in one ounce of butter; cover closely, and cook gently so that they do not burn. Pound in a mortar with pepper, salt, and a pinch of nutmeg. Spread on thin slices of brown bread-and-butter, and cut into fingers for sandwiches.

Maryland Pudding.—Put the following ingredients into a basin: Three ounces of breadcrumbs, four ounces of flour, half a teaspoonful of baking powder, two ounces of sugar, three ounces each of suet, chopped apples, and figs. Add a beaten egg and enough milk to make a rather stiff dough. Boil for three hours.

Cornflour Cake.—Cream two ounces of butter with four ounces of sugar, then add gradually four ounces of cornflour, two eggs, the grated rind of half a lemon, and lastly two tablespoonfuls of flour, mixed with one teaspoonful of baking powder. Pour into a paper-lined tin and bake from half to three-quarters of an hour.

Prune Pudding.—Stew one pound of prunes with a little water, the rind of half a lemon, and sugar to taste, adding four cloves. When the prunes are quite soft remove household is this: One teaspoonful of boracic acid dissolved in four tablespoonfuls of rosewater. Keep tightly corked, and use for any kind of skin irritation or chafing.

Baked potatoes are much nicer if they are first poiled for ten minutes. Drain thoroughly, and then put in the oven.

Coal ash is a fine polish for the bright parts of the range. Dip a wet rag into the fine ash, and rub well, and a fine polish will be the result.

Lace curtains should soak for two hours before washing in cold water to which a little borax has been added. They are much easier to wash after, and it rids them of the smell of smoke.

Pieces of bread should never be wasted. Stand in the oven till crisp, then pound in a mortar, and sift. Put into a tin and you have breadcrumbs always ready for puddings, frying fish, etc.

To black a stove is quite easy, but before you polish it wash off all grease spots with soap-suds, and rub anything burnt on with sand-paper. This done, it will readily take a black-lead polish.

T Clean Carpets.—A correspondent tells that she keeps her carpets clean and fresh-looking by wiping them over with a cloth wrung out in ammonia and water once a month, after sweeping.

Collars and cuffs will never blister if starched on the right side.

When cutting bread and butter very thin, dip the knife occasionally in very hot water.

An old fowl should be skinned before cooking, either for boiling or roasting.

Washing tubs which are not in constant use will crack unless some water is kept in them.

An onion for soup should be stuck with six cloves and added after the soup has been skimmed.

Wooden spoons and pastry boards will repay a good scrubbing with sand in preference to soap.

Combs should not be washed. Clean them by passing a piece of soft rag between the teeth.

Only have just what saucepans are in constant use—otherwise, some are certain to be left to rust.

Ginger poultices are as efficacious as mustard and will not blister. They should be made in the same way.

When hanging out clothes, hang skirts by the bands, night-dresses by the shoulders, and stockings by the toes.

A cut onion will absorb all impurities; therefore if you want a small piece, cut one end off, and put the cut end downwards on a plate or saucer, so that nothing can touch it.

A WONDERFUL KITCHEN.

William A. Clark's Palace, Fifth Avenue, New York.

The "Kitchen wonderful" in the

...dred and twenty Nethinim (19 and 20), are found to accompany the Jews on their journey. Although these were all mentioned by name on the list before the writer, he does not think it worth while to take up space with their names.

21-36. Events of the journey, including preparations, and a description of the journey itself, and the arrival at Jerusalem.

21. A fact—That it was a strictly spiritual exercise is evident in the language used to describe its purpose. It was a symbol of humble submission before God, a season of prayer for a course free from dangers and hindrances.

22. A band of soldiers—Such as Nehemiah had (Neh. 2. 9). The enemy in the way was not any specific foe, like the Samaritans, but bands of robbers in the desert. Ezra had confidence that, if they sought the Lord with faithful hearts, they would need no help of kings and armies, for the Omnipotent hand would be upon them for good. The great leader had already intimated this to the king. If now they were unequal to their foes, it would be an evidence of the wrath of God turned against them for forsaking him.

24. Twelve . . . priests—It is difficult to decide which is meant, whether that priests mean Levites (margin), and that there were twelve of them, including Sherebiah and Hashabiah, who have already been mentioned as Levites; or, that there were twenty-four in all, one group consisting of twelve priests, besides (margin) which there were the two Levites named and ten others.

25. Weighed—Money was reckoned largely by weight. The offering of silver and gold and vessels, made by the king and others, has already been described in Ezra 7. 15-19. The sum has been estimated at about five million dollars.

28. Holy unto Jehovah—The priests and Levites were by this act separated unto the sacred service of the Lord's house. The solemnity of this votive offering was intensified by an appeal to their hereditary connections. The mere mention of the God of their fathers would cause their memories to turn back upon a past in which the hand of God was evident.

29. Watch ye, and keep them—They are precious treasures, consecrated to a high purpose, and are to be vigilantly and jealously guarded.

Chambers—Storerooms (1 Kings 6. 5) connected with the outer buildings of the temple.

31. Departed . . . on the twelfth day—The actual march did not, therefore, begin until this day. Ahava was simply a convenient place of assembling and taking preliminary steps for the long journey. The first month was Nisan and corresponds to our March-April.

32. We came to Jerusalem—This was on the first day of the fifth month, or about the middle of July. In all about 108 days were consumed in going a distance of not less than 900 miles. It was in the midst of the heated term, the company was large and the caravan was heavy.

33. Weighed . . . into the hand of Meremoth—He and his three companions were doubtless chosen by the leaders to receive the offerings, after carefully determining if they corresponded with the written lists, and to convey them to the treasurer. There were two priests and ceding paragraph.

PUGGINS AND POPPETT.

"Well, well, what's the matter, Tiddle Toddle Toddlekins?" said big brother Dick, as he saw his small sister sitting in the big arm-chair looking very disconsolate.

"O Dick," said the little girl, whose name was really Gertrude, but who was called "Trudie" for short, and "Tiddle Toddle Toddlekins" when Dick wanted to tease a little, "I'm so worried about Puggins and Poppett, the little kittens Mrs. Spencer gave me. Their mother died, and the poor little things are too young to drink milk themselves. We must find some way to feed them, but I've tried all sorts of things, and I can't teach them to drink. They are getting so thin I don't know what to do."

Dick thought a minute, and then he said, "Come on, Trudie; I know the very thing." He ran up-stairs to his room, and pretty soon came back with something in his hand. "Now," he said, "come out where the kittens are, and let's see if I can get them to drink."

First they went to the kitchen and heated a cup of milk, not really hot, but just nice and warm. Then Dick and Trudie went out to the shed, where the two little motherless kittens were in their box. Really, they were very thin, for, as Trudie said, they had eaten nothing for two days. Dick took one of the little kittens up, and then Trudie saw that what he had in his hand was a nice, new, clean fountain-pen filler or medicine-dropper. He filled the dropper with the warm milk and put one end in kitty's mouth. He then pressed the rubber end of the dropper, and kitty tasted the warm milk in her mouth. How she did claw and struggle to get more milk!

Trudie held her in her arms and Dick fed her milk until she was satisfied. Then Trudie put her back in the box, and the other kitten was fed in the same way. Trudie fed them milk in this way for several days, until they learned to drink milk out of a saucer.

The kittens are sleek, grown-up cats now, and well able to take care of themselves. They have forgotten all about how they used to take milk out of a medicine-dropper, but Trudie has not forgotten, and she thinks Dick is the nicest brother in the world. I rather think that Puggins and Poppett think so, too.

SURE CURE.

ing powder. Pour into a paper-lined tin and bake from half to three-quarters of an hour.

Prune Pudding.—Stew one pound of prunes with a little water, the rind of half a lemon, and sugar to taste, adding four cloves. When the prunes are quite soft remove the spices, and pass the fruit through a sieve. Line a piedish with slices of bread, pour the hot fruit on it, and cover all with another slice. Place a saucer on the top with a weight on it. Press till cold, then turn out to serve.

Eccles Cakes—Grease a plate and line it with short crust. Cover with this mixture: A quarter of a pound of currants, one ounce of Demerara sugar, half a teaspoonful of grated nutmeg, and one piece of candied lemon peel chopped. Now spread over a piece of pastry, press the edges, score the top with a knife, and bake.

Boiled meat, being somewhat insipid, requires nice sauce or gravy not just a little of its own broth, poured into the dish. Try this sauce: Melt an ounce of butter in a pan, stir into it a level tablespoonful of flour, and half a pint of its liquor, stir till it boils. Then add any of the following flavorings: Chopped parsley, chopped walnut or mixed pickle, capers, tomatoes, or for a change again a teaspoonful of tarragon vinegar.

Indian soup is delicious, and so easily made that it should be constantly seen on our tables. Put one quart and a half of stock into a saucepan, and when it is boiling stir in one tablespoonful of well-washed rice, and let it boil for twenty minutes. Put one tablespoonful of flour into a basin with half a teaspoonful of curry powder, make into a paste with cold water, stir it into the soup, and let it boil for five minutes. Serve at once.

Stewed Scragg of Mutton.—Cut the meat into neat pieces and put into a stewpan with barely enough hot water to cover. When it boils, skim it carefully, and then let it stew gently for half an hour. Add one large onion sliced, one carrot cut into dice, and a pint of parboiled haricot beans, and let all simmer together for nearly an hour. Season with pepper and salt and a very little mace, and place the meat on a hot dish. Thicken the sauce with a little flour, worked into butter, and pour round.

HINTS FOR THE HOME.

When choosing beef press it with the thumb, and if it rises quickly, it is of good quality.

Clothes lines should be brought indoors when the clothes are dry. Dry them and put away till required again.

A mirror should never be hung where the direct rays of the sun can come to it, or the glass will soon be spotted.

Clean windows with newspaper slightly moistened with methylated spirit, and you will be surprised with the result.

A nourishing dish may be made from cooked meat by stewing it very slowly in good gravy for an hour or an hour and a half.

Before washing flannels shake them well to get rid of any dust that may be in them. Shake again before hanging out to dry.

Where lamps are used a box of sand should be kept on every floor to be ready in cases of accident. Sand extinguishes burning paraffin, water spoils it.

A WONDERFUL KITCHEN.

William A. Clark's Palace, Fifth Avenue, New York.

The "kitchen wonderful" in the costliest palace in America is now ready to produce food for its millionaire owner, his wife and his guests.

Much has been written of the vast mansion built by ex-Senator William A. Clark of Montana on Fifth-ave., New York, at a cost of $5,000,000—a flamboyant monstrosity of art, or an architectural gem—depending on how you look at it.

But little has been told of the kitchen—for it is only just completed. It is a laboratory of gleaming white, where housekeeping becomes a wonderful mechanical game. Over it all presides the young wife who once knew direst poverty.

Every foot of space, even on the ceiling, is tiled in spotless white. The working tables are white enameled, with either glass or marble tops. The rest of the kitchen furniture is also of washable white enamel.

The great culinary apartment is cut into a series of six alcoves. Each alcove has its own especially adopted oven, range, or electrical apparatus. There is an electric pastry mixer, an electrically turned spit for roasting fowls and great joints, and even a little automatic mayonnaise tosser. In each apartment is a clever arrangement of shelves and drawers. Some of the shelves swing around like a dentist's cabinet, holding needed utensils. Little drawers, all labeled carefully, pop open at the touch, holding sugar and spice, and other nice things.

Swinging from the walls are hundreds of cooking utensils, pots and pans galore, no two alike, many of them the invention of the chef who rules the Clark kitchens. An inventory of all these things, as well as of all other supplies, is kept by "the chef of the domestic department."

The pantries off the kitchens are electric contrivances which are really weird. A little electric railway brings in supplies from the storerooms; china, silver, and cut glass are cleaned and polished by electricity, fowls are singed by it, even coal and ashes are dumped by its means.

Sixty tons of ice are frozen at one time in the ice vaults; there are automatic dumb waiters, which may be set like a clock to stop at a certain floor or room, and an air plant furnishes perfectly fumigated and life-giving air to every part of the mansion.

Besides the kitchen wonderful there are five kitchens attached to separate suites in the house. There is a beautiful nursery kitchen in which trained nurses prepare food for the two little girls of the house. Another is part of the "quarantine suite," supplied with all the apparatus for cooking for the sick.

A SUCCESS.

The Girl—What's your opinion of women who imitate men?

The Man—They're idiots!

The Girl—Then the imitation is successful.

THAT'S WHEN HE STARTED.

CAUSE FOR ALARM.

Loss of Appetite or Distress After Eating, a Symptom that Should not be Disregarded.

Appetite is just a natural desire for food. Loss of appetite or stomach distress after eating indicate indigestion or dyspepsia. Over-eating is a habit very dangerous to a person's good general health.

It is not what you eat but what you digest and assimilate that does you good. Some of the strongest, heaviest and healthiest persons are moderate eaters.

There is nothing that will cause more trouble than a disordered stomach and many people daily contract serious maladies simply through disregard or abuse of the stomach.

We urge all in Napanee who suffer any stomach derangement, indigestion or dyspepsia, whether acute or chronic, to try Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, with the distinct understanding that we will refund their money without question or formality, if after reasonable use of this medicine, they are not perfectly satisfied with the results. We recommend them to our customers every day, and have yet to hear of any who has not been benefited by them. We honestly believe them to be with out equal. They give very prompt relief, aiding or neutralize the gastric juices, strengthen the digestive organs, to regulate the bowels, and thus to promote perfect nutrition, and eradicate all unhealthy symptoms.

We urge you to try a 25c. box of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, which gives 15 days' treatment. At the end of that time, your money will be returned to you if you are not satisfied. Of course in chronic cases length of treatment varies. For such cases, we have two larger sizes, which sell for 50c. and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store T. B. Wallace, Druggist.

A STORM ON GALILEE.

Fierce While It Lasted, It Went as Quickly as It Came.

The sea of Galilee is not always calm. The mountains immediately adjoining it are 2,000 feet high, and through their deep gorges the storm winds are sucked into the hollow of the lake, so that sudden squalls come literally out of a blue sky. One charming spring morning we started out to sail from Tiberias to Capernaum. There was not a ripple on the water or a cloud in the heavens. But when we were a quarter of a mile from shore our boatmen noticed a band of rough water rushing toward us from the other side of the lake. In spite of our remonstrances they immediately gave up the plan for making Capernaum, took down the sail with such frantic haste that they nearly upset the boat and then rowed for the land with all their might and with such excited urgings to one another that we thought them a cowardly crew. But hardly had the boat been beached in a sheltered cove when the wind was howling down on us from the mountains and the heavy breakers were foaming along the shore as far out into the lake as we could see. A quarter of an hour later the sea of Galilee was again as level as a mirror, and only a soft, warm breeze was blowing over the smiling waters.—Travel Magazine.

INSECT SENSE OF SMELL.

Ants Are Said to Recognize Their Different Species By Odor.

Students of the behavior of ants are well aware of the fact that they will not tolerate strange ants in their nests. If a foreign, even though of the same species and indistinguishable to human eyes from the lawful inhabitants of the nest, strays in from another nest she is apt to emerge hastily, pursued and attacked by the ants which belong there. How do they know that she is a foreigner? It does not seem likely that among the thousands of ants belonging to the nest another ant of exactly the same species should be recognised as a stranger by her appearance. The English naturalist Lord Avebury in his book on "Ants, Bees and Wasps" records some experiments to test the possibility that ants may recognize their nest mates through some movement of the feelers or antennae, with which they sometimes seem to greet each other when they meet.

He stupefied with alcohol ants from different nests and placed them near one of the nests. The ants from that nest came out and carried their helpless nest mates home, but threw the bodies of their enemies away. Evidently friend and foe were distinguished by something other than their behavior.

A German physiologist, Bethe, solved the problem in the following way: He suspected that ants from a foreign nest might have an odor that excited the warlike instincts of ants in the home nest. Accordingly he took a number of ants from one nest, killed them and crushed their bodies so that the body fluids were pressed out. Taking some live ants from a second nest, he first dipped them in water and alcohol and then into the body fluids of the other ants. He then returned them to their own nest. Their nest mates fell upon them as if they were driven out and in some instances killed.

On the other hand, Bethe found that the foreign nest, the odor of which they now presumably bore, would receive peaceably the ants which had undergone the transforming treatment.

Other observers have confirmed these results of Bethe's for many species of ants. The truth, then, seems to be that any ant differing from their own puts the ants into a warlike attitude.

It is true that this explanation requires one to suppose that a different odor belongs to every ant nest, and this seems hard to believe, yet nothing else appears to account for the facts.

There are many other remarkable things about the sense of smell in insects, and it must be remembered that the sense of smell in human beings is far inferior to that of some animals—for example, the dog. Man cannot judge the capacities of other animals in the matter of smell by his own poor performances.

A Costly Grudge.

The most expensive act of damage ever committed by a railway worker was that of an Italian navy employed on the construction of a tunnel through one of the mountains in the Black Forest. Having a grudge against his foreman, he succeeded one night in altering the position of the stakes which marked the course of the work. The excavators were working upon the tunnel in two sections, one from the north and one from the south. Owing to the shifting of the stakes the sections instead of being directed to the same point were found to be twenty-six feet apart when they reached the middle of the mountain. The northern half of the tunnel had therefore to be entirely reconstructed at a cost of $875,000.—London Chronicle.

PRESS COMMENTS.

Hamilton Times.

So Whitney denies that he is to appoint a Provincial commission to take the license administration out of politics. Didn't Sir James himself say that it had long been taken out? Why should he write himself down a—romancer?

Galt Reformer.

The Ontario Liberal party has embodied a plank in their platform to permit municipalities to exempt improvements from taxation, either in whole or in part. This, we believe, is a popular move, and will meet with hearty support from the Ontario electors, no matter what their political stripe.

Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

The new platform of the Ontario Liberals has so affected Premier Whitney that he declines to give an opinion off-hand and without due consideration. This is a good beginning. Anything that compels Premier Whitney to think before delivering authoritative opinion must be regarded as serving a good purpose.

Belleville Ontario.

Mr. Rowell is a man of advanced thought and high ideals, but he is not an enthusiast or a dreamer. The new platform shows, above everything else, that he is intensely practical. The proposals are just such as will commend themselves to the plain, everyday citizen, who looks at every question from a common-sense standpoint.

St. Thomas Journal.

A Government which first rewards its own friends in almost a prodigal way and neglects to inaugurate progressive reforms and a policy needed to people the great fertile tracts in New Ontario, thereby adding to the wealth, business and industrial activity of old Ontario, is no longer entitled to the confidence and support of the pro-industrial centres of this Province.

Kingston Whig.

Some of the Conservative papers say that Mr. Rowell simply endorses some things that Sir James Whitney promises. And a great deal more. Mr. Rowell advocates some things that Sir James Whitney refuses the people. Our leader is willing to take advanced ground and give the people, at any time and in any way, the legislation which they demand, and sooner or later he will be in a position to fully gratify them.

Hamilton Herald.

It cannot be denied that the power possessed by the Government to deny any citizen the right to bring an action against itself save with its consent is a power which may be abused, and behind which grave injustice may be done. But it is a power which is held by all British Governments, and sometimes exercised by them. The check upon this abuse is the force of public opinion.

Quebec Chronicle.

Suppose, for the sake of argument, that there are three neighbors on the same block. The two extreme men happen to be progressive and build expensive and up-to-date buildings. Their taxes are immediately raised sky-high. But the man in the middle, the value of whose property may be

"The Liver Pills act So Naturally and Easily."

Such a statement, coming from the cashier of a bank, spows what confidence responsible people have in these pills. Mr. A. L. Wilson after trying them wrote:

"I have used Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills and also your Anti-Pain Pills, on myself, with good results. The Liver Pills act so naturally and so easily that I scarcely know that I have taken a pill. The Matrimonial Game.
"Politics is like marriage, and you know what the pretty widow said about marriage at the seashore." The speaker smiled and continued:
"A somewhat passe summer girl, at the end of a season that had left her further off than ever from the matrimonial harbor, looked sadly seaward and said:
"Well, marriage is a lottery."
"But a fair young widow whose engagement to a millionaire of fifty-two summers had just been announced—this fair young widow with a toss of the head retorted:
"Don't you believe it. It's a game of skill."

What He Was Practicing.
When a leading citizen of a small town returned thither after a prolonged sojourn abroad he made a tour of the place to find out how all his old friends were "getting along."

At one establishment he found a youth, the son of an old friend of his, whose father was stilling paying his office rent.
"Practicing law now, Jim?" asked the returned one genially.
"No, sir," replied the youth frankly; "I appear to be, but I am really practicing economy."

A Girl's Way.
"Why do you keep asking me to be your wife? You surely wouldn't want me to marry you if I don't love you."
"No, I don't want you to marry me if you don't love me, but I can't help thinking the practice I'm getting in asking you may some time come in handy. Now I'm going to give you another chance to turn me down."
"Oh, well, if you're determined to have me I suppose I may as well say yes."

Great Scheme.
Jorkins—There's Perkins—you know Perkins?—entered into an agreement with his wife soon after their marriage, twenty years ago, that whenever either lost their temper or stormed the other was to keep silence.
Bob—And the scheme worked?
Jorkins—Admirably. Perkins has kept silence for twenty years.

nappen to be progressive and build expensive and up-to-date buildings. Their taxes are immediately raised sky-high. But the man in the middle, the value of whose property may be doubled or trebled by the enterprise of his neighbors, still continues to pay the same taxes, though he may be trying to sell his land at its increased value.

Saskatoon Phoenix
The press of Ontario greets the new Liberal leader with words of approval and praise. There is the general feeling, especially in the Liberal press, that the party will be much stronger under Rowell, and will regain much of its lost prestige. Already the Liberals have scored on the attitude toward the municipal assessment law. The further indication of a decided stand for temperance reform will rally many Liberals who have been lukewarm.

Woodstock Sentinel Review.
Premier Whitney professes to regard the new Liberal platform as a "skimpy chicken." There is some reason to believe that this is one of the Premier's bluffs. If he reads the papers at all, and especially his own party papers, he must be well aware that some of the features of this platform are regarded by large numbers of his own followers as anything but "skimpy." Perhaps it is that knowledge that is bothering the Premier.

Winnipeg Tribune.
Our Judges are not to blame. Among them are many men who would deal out even-handed justice, but it is within our knowledge and public knowledge, that politicians have even tried to bedevil the Bench. One notorious time a Cabinet Minister, made no secret of his desire to have "friendly" Judges on the Bench, giving as a reason that they would help the party in election cases. Nowadays, however, there are few if any political corruption cases for the courts. The parties have agreed upon a conspiracy of hushing up the whole dirty business.

Ottawa Journal.
Nevertheless, the whole gives the impression of a man who does his own thinking, and who would have the will and force to pursue a good many of his ideas into practical action if given the opportunity. If Mr. Rowell is a man of this kind, it is a good thing for Ontario. Ontario and Canada can be only the better for first-class men in politics on both sides. That is the best guarantee for each party keeping straight and the country getting the best possible out of the party system.

St. John N. B., Telegraph and Sun.
The Ontario Conservatives are in a bad way. On one hand Mr. Osler attacks them saying that their conduct was in the last degree disgraceful in flocking around the Premier-elect, seeking and clamoring for spoils in the first weeks following the elections. It made him ashamed to be a Conservative, he assures us. Then they voted against Sir Wilfrid Laurier because he was a Frenchman, and now they see the Nationalists absolutely dominating the present Government. Mr. Borden, Mr. Osler fears, will do their bidding until the end of the chapter: if he does not so much the worse for Mr. Borden.

A WONDERFUL CASE.

Three Months in Hospital and Came out Uncured.

Zam-Buk Cured Him in Few Weeks.

Mr. Fred Mason, the well known upholsterer and mattress manufacturer of St. Andrews, N. B., says:—

"I had eczema on my knee, which caused me terrible pain and inconvenience. The sore parts would itch and burn and tingle, and then when rubbed or scratched, would become very painful. When the knee got warm, it turned worse, and the itching and burning and smarting were almost unbearable. I tried various remedies, but got no better, so I decided to go to Montreal and take special treatment. I received treatment at the Montreal General Hospital for thirteen weeks, but at the end of that time I was not cured, and almost gave in. A friend advised me to give Zam-Buk a trial.

"Almost as soon as applied Zam-Buk stopped the itching and the irritation I persevered with the balm, and it was soon evident that it would do me good. Each day the pain was reduced, the sore spots began to heal, and by the time I had used a few boxes of Zam-Buk I was quite cured.

"Since then Zam-Buk has cured blood-poison in my finger, and at a time when my finger was in such a terrible condition that I feared it

APES OF GIBRALTAR.

Highly Prized and Carefully Protected by Martial Law.

Major is the name of the chief of the highly prized and carefully protected tribe of Barbary apes that inhabit the rock of Gibraltar. There is a saying in the fortress to the effect that it were "better to kill the governor than Major."

There are only about twenty left of this band of monkeys, which in some mysterious manner came over from Africa many years ago and claimed citizenship in Europe. They are protected by martial law, and any addition by birth to their number is carefully chronicled and announced in the local paper. The apes change their place of residence from the highest peaks of the rock to lower and more sheltered portions and back again, according to the state of the weather. They show their sense of humor by throwing stones at the soldiers, but they are often not seen for weeks at a time save in the early morning.

A few years ago, on account of the diminishing numbers of these animals, some apes were procured from Barbary and turned loose upon the rock. But resident monkeys killed them all. Although so fierce to intruders of their own kind, they never attack human beings and are greatly beloved and esteemed.—New York Press.

Beware the Model Husband.

Preachers advise women to marry model men, but practical women urge their sisters to shun such men. The theory of the perfect husband is regarded as fine, but the practical woman says such a thing is an impossibility, and if a man has the outward aspect of being a model he should be watched and shunned. A woman author recently asserted it is not natural for any human being to be a model for the whole time of his or her life, and for that reason she prophesied that if any woman thinks she is getting a model husband she should look for breakers ahead. She said the model husband is like the placid sea; he is likely to break out some day and perhaps bring domestic shipwreck, or, at least, strife and unexpected worry in his household. She does not believe in the husband who always pays his bills, never is late to dinner, never drinks or smokes to excess, never in a temper nor does anything wrong. She says he is sure to go wrong some time.

A Brush For the Laundry.

A great deal of wear on clothes can be saved by the use of a small hand brush. Instead of rubbing the clothes on the washboard, lay the soiled spot on the board, rub well with soap and scrub with the brush. This method is easier on the hands as well as on the clothes.

Clothes rinsed in hard water in which bluing has been dissolved are likely to be streaked, but all danger of this may be avoided by adding a cupful of skim milk to the bluing water.

He Wasn't Worried.

On the eve of the death of Heinrich Heine, than whom few greater poets have ever lived, an anxious and officious friend asked the dying man if he had made his peace with God.

"Do not trouble yourself," replied Heine, with a wan smile, "God will pardon me; that's His trade."

Those were the last coherent words Heine was heard to utter.

Phantom Circuit.

The so-called "phantom" wire or circuit used in telegraphing and telephoning is the additional circuit obtained by wire that is obtained in a single conductor by means of a multiplex system.

Air Movements.

The movement of air is variously designated, according to its velocity, as a zephyr, breeze, wind, gale or hurricane. A dense fog, according to the weather bureau, obscures objects at a distance of 1,000 feet.

Asaya-Neurall

THE NEW REMEDY FOR Nervous Exhaustion Heredity is one of the main causes of nervous exhaustion. Paris May Become a Seaport.

Paris is actively agitating the project of enlarging the bed of the Seine so as to bring sea-going vessels to the French capital, and Municipal Counselor Denis voices the general opinion that the scheme is entirely practical and is what Paris needs above all for its future prosperity. The $25,000,000 which is annually paid for the transport of freight from Paris to London in order to be reshipped will be partly saved. Besides, the metallurgical and industrial eastern region will have direct connection with England.

Another point is that the $34,000,000 for work claimed to be indispensable for preventing future inundations of the Seine will not be needed. All capital put into the "Paris seaport" project will be revenue bearing.

Why Not Remember This?

"The worst trouble about a life preserver," said an old sailor, "is that few people know what to do with one when it's thrown to them. Many a man would drown in trying to get a life preserver over his head. The average person struggling about in the water would try to lift up the big life ring and put it over his head. That only causes the man to sink deeper and take more water into his lungs.

"The proper way to approach a life preserver in the water is to take hold of the side nearest you and press upon it with all your weight. That causes the other side to fly up in the air and down over your head, 'ringing' you as neatly as a man ringing a cane at a country fair. After that the drowning man can be rescued."

I Am Willing To Prove I Can Cure You

To That End I Am Giving Away $10,000 Worth of Medicine

In order to show beyond all doubt that I am in possession of a medicine that will cure kidney trouble, bladder trouble or rheumatism, I will this year give away ten thousand dollars' worth of this medicine, and anyone suffering from these diseases can get a box of it absolutely free. All that is necessary is to send me your address.

I don't mean that you are to use a part of it or all of it and pay me if cured. I mean that I will send you a box of this medicine absolutely free of charge, a gift from me to the Uric Acid sufferers of the world, so I can show them where and how they may be cured. I will not expect payment for this free medicine, nor would I accept it now or later if you sent it. It is free in the real meaning of the word.

For twenty-five years—a quarter of a century—I have been trying to convince the public that I have something genuine, something better than others have for the cure of stubborn, chronic rheumatism, for torturing kidney backaches for annoying calls to urinate. But it is hard to convince people—they try a few things unsuccessfully and give up all hope and refuse to listen to anyone thereafter. Happily, I am in a position now to demonstrate to sufferers at my own expense that I have a medicine that cures these diseases. I don't ask them to spend any money to find out; I don't ask them to believe me, but I ask to take the word of reliable people, but all I ask is that they allow me to send them the medicine at my own cost. That is surely fair.

To this end I have set aside ten thousand dollars, which will be used to compound my medicine. Much of it is ready now to be sent out, all of it fresh and standard. There will be enough for all sufferers, though there are thousands of them. And anyone who needs it can get some of it free. But in order that I shall know that you have a disease for which this medicine is intended, I ask you to send me some of your leading symptoms. If you have any of the symptoms in the list and you need my medicine and you will write me I will gladly send you a box of it free with full directions for your use. Look the symptoms over, see which symptoms you have, then write me about as follows: "Dear Dr. I notice symptoms number"—here put down the numbers. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynott, 887 Franklin Building, Toronto, Can.

The ten thousand dollars I am spending for the compounding of my medicine is only a part of the money I am devoting to this cause, for the package of medicine I send you will be prepaid at my expense. From any standpoint you view it, YOU incur no expense or obligation. Just tell others who you know are suffering how you sent you the medicine that cured you.

I am promising to give away ten thousand dollars' worth of medicine, and I will do that; I am promising to send any sufferer who writes me a box of this medicine and full directions free of charge, and I will do that.

DR. T. FRANK LYNOTT who is giving away $10,000 worth of medicine.

I can say further that this medicine has been vouched for according to law as complying in every detail with all requirements. It will stop rheumatism, it will stop pain and backache, it will stop too frequent desire to urinate; it will heal, soothe and strengthen. You will be better in every way for having taken it. There is not an ingredient that can injure; not one but will benefit. All that I ask is that you use it yourself so that you may be personally convinced.

Owing to the large number of requests, I have had ten thousand more copies of my medical book printed. This book is new and up to date and contains complete descriptions, symptoms, causes, effects and cures of kidney, bladder and rheumatic diseases. All who write for the free medicine will be sent a copy of this grand illustrated medical book—the largest ever written on these diseases for free and general distribution.

If you need medicine such as I have, if you are anxious to be cured and don't want to spend any money LOOKING for cures, write me. Read the symptoms over and let me hear from you today.

These Are the Symptoms:

- 1—Pain in the back.
- 2—Too frequent desire to urinate.
- 3—Burning or obstruction of urine.
- 4—Pain or soreness in the bladder.
- 5—Prostatic trouble.
- 6—Gas or pain in the stomach.
- 7—General debility, weakness, dizziness.
- 8—Pain or soreness under right rib.
- 9—Swelling in any part of the body.
- 10—Constipation or liver trouble.
- 11—Palpitation or pain under the heart.
- 12—Pain in the hip joint.
- 13—Pain in the neck or head.
- 14—Pain or soreness in the kidneys.
- 15—Pain or swelling of the joints.
- 16—Pain or swelling of the muscles.
- 17—Pain and soreness in the nerves.
- 18—Acute or chronic rheumatism.

WHAT REASON DOES HE GIVE?

Why Does the Small Boy Consign Certain Games to Certain Seasons?

Biblically, the "laws of the Medes and Persians" stood in their day as typical of unchangeableness. To-day the uncharted seasons of children's games are as immutable. A good food is a good food, provided, in so many cases, that the food is served in season. And it is the season which lends spice to the boy's games.

There are fine winds in March, but did you ever see a boy trying to fly a kite in a March wind? In August and September the ground is warm and dry, but did you ever see a game of marbles going on then? In the last 40 years, too, 10,000 inventors have been putting over games and apparatus designed to make fortunes for themselves by displacing the slow-going, old-fashioned games of marbles, tops, kite flying, ball, I-spy, mumble-the-peg, and eating green apples with salt. But have they succeeded?

Marbles is the game of games first suggestive of spring. Probably no boy who ever lived ever knew who was the first boy in school to appear on the school grounds rattling a pocketful of "taws" and "commies." At the opening of the marble season, however, it always was and probably always will be March weather. Tops always have been the successor of marbles and then comes baseball.

Twenty-five years ago the blossoming dog fennel in vacant lots may have been a first suggestion of the season of kites. In those days the "tail" kite was universal, and the universal balance to the tail of rags or papers was the bunch of dog fennel.

When have you seen an old-fashioned tail kite against the sky line? But the kite season remains on the almanac, unmarked but of universal acceptance. It may be a box kite, wing kite, or triangular, tailless kite which mounts against the August and September winds, independent of the dog fennel, but the season is unchanged. On an August day a search of a city sky with a telescope may fail to disclose a single kite; the next day the unaided eye may mark a score inside half a square mile. Can you find the boy who built the first one? If you can, do you imagine that he can give you a reason beyond: "Why say—it's kite time!"

No man who ever lived as boy and man ever heard who established the opening of the season of marbles, tops and kites. And in like manner you may search in vain for the boy—however secluded from other boys—who does not feel "the call of the games" as the unmarked seasons roll around.

Satisfactory Excuse.

"I am a self made man," said the pompous individual, with his chest expanded.

The other looked at him critically. "Your excuse is satisfactory," he said.

Two Flowers.

The dahlia was named after Andrew Dahl, a Danish botanist, who was a pupil of Linnaeus. The flower is a native of Mexico, but was first cultivated in Europe by Dahl. It was taken to England about 1804. The word daisy is a corruption of "day's eye," as the pretty flower used to be called. The old English form was "daye-eye."

Lesser of Two Evils.

"Why doesn't your wife sing to the baby when it cries?"

"Sh! We've found out that the neighbors would rather listen to the baby."

THE FALL FIGURE.

Drizzling, Long-Necked and Slender Shouldered, It's Truly Feminine.

Some people have said that there would not be any notable change in the fall styles, but the simple-minded on-looker gets the impression that there will be an alteration quite fundamental and revolutionizing. Woman's figure is to change. It isn't going to be any simple little alteration, such as sliding from the waist line up or down a few inches from its historical position. It is a more disturbing upheaval than that. Her shoulders, which have been square for upward of ten years, are now to slope! The Mona Lisa, or the beer bottle figure—whichever concrete image you prefer to call the present shape to the mind—will be the one in vogue. Woman is now to be tall from the shoulders up. After practicing all of her life to stand square, she is now engaged in assiduous practice to let herself droop. Those women who flaunted their natural box shoulders that have needed any padding are retiring to the background of the world of fashion. The shoulders will droop, the neck will be long, and the hat will be high.

The figure will be soft and rounded, but it will not comprise hips. All of the figure will be from the waist up. There will be a certain tip or dip or slant—wait till you see it, and then you will understand that the word has not yet been born to name it—in the carriage of the Mona Lisas who will shortly flower in abundance on the streets of our cities. There will be a careless ease about her when later in the day she wanders over velvet carpets in her dinner dress, her little pointed train sometimes appearing to the right, the centre, and, sometimes, to the left of her feet.

She who will tread our streets and prepare our dinners and rear our children will not for the present be a tailor-made type. She will be soft and cooie and ingratiating. For how can the woman who droops, who wears headgear ascending into a pointed crown, who affects the sweet, retiring look, keep from modifying her thoughts to harmonize with her bearing?

Not a great change in the fall styles! Forsooth! Has suffrage received such a menace since it first became popular? The aggressive woman will not enlist sympathy when she mounts a platform to defend her inalienable rights, dressed to look like her great-great-grandmother, with a piquant expression on her face and

CURIOSITY Prompted Many Women To Try PURITY FLOUR

THEY were curious to see exactly what results would be produced by flour consisting entirely of the high-grade portions of the best Western hard wheat.

They were curious to know more about a flour that contained none of the low-grade portions, which are found in every wheat berry, but which are separated and excluded from the high-grade in the process of milling PURITY FLOUR.

THEY were curious to know whether an ALL HIGH - GRADE hard wheat flour was really superior to a mixed hard and soft wheat flour.

They were curious to see and taste the kind of bread, buns, biscuits, cakes and pies PURITY FLOUR would make.

Curiosity prompts you to seek the knowledge they discovered. It's urging you to try PURITY FLOUR.

REMINDER: On account of the extra strength and extra quality of PURITY FLOUR it is necessary, for best pastry-results, to add more shortening than you are accustomed to use with an ordinary flour. Add more water when making bread.

Add PURITY FLOUR to your grocery list right now alienable rights, dressed to look like her great-great-grandmother, with a piquant expression on her face and her sloping shoulders drooped.

Unconventionalities.

"You mustn't mind my not asking you to stay to dinner, Mrs. Happendin. There's just about enough roast beef for our own family."

"Yes, that's a beautiful diamond, Jack, dear—if it is a diamond. Let me see the jeweler's bill for it, please."

"Hawkins, you oughtn't to let the barber cut your hair so short. It shows the shape of your head."

"You needn't have brought the book back at all, Mrs. Luxmore; as soon as you borrowed it I sent out and bought another copy."

"Migglesworth, old chap, talk to me awhile, won't you? I'm troubled with insomnia."

"Dear sir: In returning these sketches to you we suggest that you quit trying to break into the magazines. See if you can't get a job in a sawmill."

Too for Him.

Spanish grandees delight in numerous names, even appropriating those that belong to their wives' families. One of these distinguished dons, wandering too far into the country, went astray on a lonely road late at night. He knocked at the door of a small inn, the landlord of which from an upper window shouted:

"Who is there?"

"Don Diego de Mendoza Silva Ribero Guzman Pimetel Osario Ponce de Leon Gumaza Accorra Tellez y Giron," replied the grandee.

"In that case," interrupted the innkeeper, closing the window, "go; there is not room here for half of you."

A Short Story.

A tall girl named Short who lived nowhere in particular for long loved a certain big Mr. Little. While Little, little thinking of Short, loved a little lass who lived in an equally healthy place, her name was Long. Well, to make a long story short, Little proposed to Long, and this made Short long to get even with Little's sweetheart. So Short, meeting Long, threatened to marry Little before Long. This naturally caused Little to marry Long before long.

Now the question is, Did tall Short love big Little less because Little loved Long?

I leave it to you.

The One He Saved.

Harold, aged nine, came home one day so bruised and dirty that his mother was thrown into a state of marked perturbation.

"Mercy!" she exclaimed in horror. "How on earth, my child, did you get your clothes and face into such a state?"

"I was trying to keep a little boy from getting licked," was Harold's virtuous if hesitating reply.

"Well, that was fine," said his mollified parent. Who was the little boy?"

"Me."

John's Blunder.

A minister in Scotland who was making a call the other week upon a member of his flock whom he had not seen at church for some time asked, "What's come over you that I don't see you at church at all now?"

"Hoot, man, ye'll no' ha' seen me because I sit aint the pillar."

"The pillar, John? Good gracious, the pillar! Why, it is two years since it was removed from the front of your seat."

The Sting Ray.

Of the many dangers which beset navigators of the tropical rivers of South America perhaps the natives fear the sting ray most. It is poisonous and is to be found in very large numbers when the river is low. That is the time when boatmen have to get in the water to push their canoes over the shallows. They are often stung by the tail of the ray and usually die unless medical assistance is promptly given. The ray cannot be seen, as it is of the same color as the sand on which it coils itself. The stab of its sharp knife-like tail is the unwary navigator's first intimation of its presence.

Greatest of Infant Prodigies.

Perhaps the most marvelous infant prodigy on record was Christian Heinecker, born at Lubeck, Feb. 6, 1721. At the age of ten months he could speak and repeat every word which he knew by heart the principal events narrated in the Pentateuch, in his second year he knew most of the Bible by heart, and before he was three he learned to speak Latin and French. In his fourth year he employed himself in the study of religion and the history of the church, and his fame as a scholar spread so that the King of Denmark sent for him and was amazed at his learning. But before he was five years of age he fell sick and died.—London Chronicle.

FREE ADVICE TO WOMEN

Women suffering from any form of illness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established this confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

Never has she published a testimonial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the Company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as the hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.

Out of the vast volume of experience which Mrs. Pinkham has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge needed in your case. She asks nothing in return except your good will, and her advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. Address Mrs. Pinkham, care of Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Every woman ought to have Lydia E. Pinkham's 80-page Text Book. It is not a book for general distribution, as it is too expensive. It is free and only obtainable by mail. Write for it today.

THE OCTOBER ROD AND GUN.

On the eve of the opening of the big game hunting season, Rod and Gun in Canada, published by W. J. Taylor, Limited, Publisher, Woodstock, Ont., is to the fore with a plentiful supply of good game hunting stories, covering Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The opening story by Mr.
Bonnycastle Dale, is particularly good, consisting of a fine description of the gallant efforts of a little fawn to escape, its rescue by the sportsman, whose best instincts were aroused by the hopeless struggle, and its capture and revival by the petting showered upon it. The whole narrative makes an irresistible appeal to the highest ideals of sportsmanship and proves a

TORTURED FOR THIRTY FIVE YEARS

I really could not live without "Fruit-a-tives"

PERAGHYALE, ONT. Jan. 29th, 1910.
"For thirty-five years (and I am now a man over seventy) I have been a terrible sufferer from Constipation. No matter what remedy or physicians I employed, the result was always the same—impossible to get a cure. About two years ago, I read about 'Fruit-atives' and I decided to try them.

I have used 'Fruit-a-tives' ever since.
They are the first and only medicine that suited my case. If it were not for 'Fruit-a-tives' I am satisfied that I could not live!" JAMES PROUDFOOT.

The greatest remedy in the world for all forms of Indigestion and Dyspepsia, is "Fruit-a-tives". Doctors as well as hundreds of people proclaim it.

"Fruit-a-tives" cures all stomach troubles because it makes the liver active, strengthens the kidneys, purifies the blood and keeps the stomach sweet and clean. "Fruit-a-tives" is the only remedy made of fruit juices.

DENBIGH.

For last week.

Rev. J. Reble, who has enjoyed a weeks visiting with Rev. and Mrs.
Wm. Kuper, of Arnprior, has arrived home again.

Mrs. E. Berndt who has been a patient in one of the Ottawa Hospitals for sometime has also arrived home again much improved.

Mr. Ernst Hartman, of Berlin, Ont. is for a couple of weeks the welcome guest of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Stein, of the Denbigh House.

Mr. Frank Chatson, Jun., of Brockville and his brother, Lorne, of Saskatoon, Sask., are here on a visit with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Chatson and are enjoying some sport at the same time. They had the luck to kill a deer on their first day out.

Mr. August Kittner, of Arnprior, a former citizen of this vicinity is also spending a few weeks visiting relatives and old friends here, and does not expect to have to return home without some big game. Mr. Julius Kittner, and son Julius, of Arnprior accompanied him and indulged in a few days sport, but owing to press of business they had to return to town again to-day without having been able to kill a deer.

The first hunting accident of the season in this vicinity has just been reported.

Mr. John Pettifer met with the misfortune of sending a rifle bullet through one of his arms. Dr. J.
Adams has attended the injured limb.

WOMEN DIVERS OF JAPAN.

A Life Which Coarsens and Ages.
Femininity—Picturesque Shops.

Japan certainly controverts some of the Occidental ideas as to women's sphere, for in the province of Shima, on the south coast of the island empire, women are the sterner sex and not only do most of the field work but are also employed as divers.

They enter the water at all seasons except during the coldest months of the winter, remaining under water sometimes for over a minute, and gather shellfish and tengusa, a kind of seaweed, which they place in a small net carried by each diver at the girdle.

These female divers are extremely hardy. The life is, however, trying and the constant exposure causes those engaged in it to become very coarse in appearance and to age quickly.

The shops and booths of Japan are of unfailing interest. Here the green grocer and fruit seller has arranged his wares until it seems as though one looked upon a great bouquet.
There the flower shop blazes in brilliance and the lantern maker squats at his multi-colored task.

At the next entrance we perhaps see a man severing chicken meat from the bone, and he performs the operation as skillfully as the surgeon with his dissecting knife. Two or three paces further on one is confronted with a typical Japanese shoe store.

The newcomer is at once startled at the immense quantity of this simple footwear and the many places where it is sold, but he soon finds a solution to his query when he hears that a Japanese man annually makes away with from eight to ten pairs a year. But curious things are not found in shops alone. The green vegetable peddler carries loads heavy, enough for a horse, but still has enough energy to call his wares as he goes.

High Heels and Wit.

If anything could be higher than the Parisienne's hat it is her heels.
The low English heel has once or twice enjoyed a brief season's favor in Paris, but at heart the Parisienne dearly loves to add a cubit or so to her stature and she achieves it of course with her beloved Louis XV. heel. Perched thus on stilts with the foot at an impossible angle "le footing" becomes impossible and madame seats herself in a cab every time she starts out for a walk. That is why her boots and shoes are always new.

DOCTORS FAILED. RESTORED BY PERUNA

Catarrh of the Lungs Threatened Her Life.

Miss Ninette Porter, Braintree, Vermont, writes: "I have been cured by Peruna.

"I had several hemorrhages of the lungs. The doctors did not help me much and would never have cured me.

"I saw a testimonial in a Peruna almanac of a case similar to mine, and I commenced using it.

"I was not able to wait on myself when I began using it. I gained very slowly at first, but I could see that it was helping me.

"After I had taken it a while I commenced to raise up a springy, sticky substance from my lungs. This grew less and less in quantity as I continued the treatment.

"I grew more fleshy than I had been for a long time, and now I call myself well."

Some one has discovered that there is a close relation between the heels and the wit. The conversation of the walker in low heels is trite and flat—bromidic, so to speak—but she who trips in high ones will soar to unexpected altitudes of epigram and paradox. We know that great wit and insanity are near neighbors and the Germans putting the principle in practice are treating madness with a bare-foot regime. The contact of the bare flat foot with Mother Earth is expected to bring back wandering minds to an every day plane and the experiment is naturally interesting.

A Useful Woman.

"Blennerhasset," said Mrs. Bliggins as he was about to start downtown, "can you let me have a little money, to run the house with today?"

"You can have just 50 cents," he growled, flinging the coin at her and slamming the door behind him as he went out.

"By the way, Bliggins," said a friend who dropped into his place of business an hour or two later, "will you go my security on a note for $500?"

"Shortleigh," replied Bliggins, "it is an inflexible rule in my family that I must never do anything of that kind without consulting my wife."

More clothes are rubbed out than worn out. GOLD DUST saves rubbing and saves your clothes

Do not use Soap, Naphtha, Borax, Soda, Ammonia or Kerosene with GOLD DUST.

GOLD DUST has all desirable cleansing qualities in a perfectly harmless and lasting form. The GOLD DUST TWINs need no outside help.

GOLD DUST lathers instantly in hot or cold, hard or soft water—converts itself instantly into thick, vigorous suds that remove grease, grime and settled stains and clear out germs and impurities. It leaves only cleanliness and wholesomeness in their wake.

GOLD DUST spares you and protects your clothes from washboard wear.

gallant efforts of a little fawn to escape, its rescue by the sportsman, whose best instincts were aroused by its hopeless struggle, and its capture and revival by the petting showered upon it. The whole narrative makes an irresistible appeal to the highest ideals of sportsmanship and proves a capital opening for a number which includes hunting of many varieties and under widely different conditions. Mr. Starratt's paper on Woodcock Shooting in Nova Scotia is another article which stands out prominently as one which cannot fail to stir the feeling and the memories of all bird hunters and make them live many of their experiences over again. Big game hunting, however, is given the pride of place in this number, and it is a foregone conclusion that in many a camp throughout this broad Dominion Rod and Gun will prove not only an acceptable but an indispensable companion. Many an important article of the outfit would be less missed than this number. Those who have the arrangements for the hunting parties and camps so general next month throughout the Canadian woods will please take notice. A wet day in camp can be passed most pleasantly with a copy of the big game hunting of Rod and Gun in Canada.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Stuff'd Beef Heart.

Boil the heart three hours. When done have just enough water for gravy. Make a dressing of one-half cupful of breadcrumbs, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-quarter teaspoonful of pepper, one-half teaspoonful of sage, one-half small onion, chopped fine; one tablespoonful of butter and hot water enough to moisten and mix thoroughly. Cut out the tough muscles and stuff the heart. Sew up and put in oven with liquor. Thicken the gravy. Serve hot or cold.

Apple Grunt.

Peel and slice thin six large ripe apples and put in deep pan for baking. Add one cupful sugar, one-half cupful water and nutmeg and stir thoroughly. Make thick batter of one large cupful flour, one heaping teaspoonful lard and one tablespoonful butter. Then pour the batter over apples and bake until done and nice and brown on top. Serve with milk and cream.

Candied Apples.

Put a cupful of brown sugar with a little water on to boil, and when it threads dip sound tart apples in the candy and cover thickly. Put a stick in the apple to hold by. You will have something to please the little ones, and it won't harm them either.

Fixing the Canal.

The work of changing and enlarging the Suez Canal has been in progress almost constantly since its opening in 1869.

Miserable Women.

The world is full of them. Heaven bless them. They are not sick enough to go to bed and not well enough to thoroughly enjoy life. And to this vast host of women with pallid cheeks, weak nerves aching backs and disordered functions, Merrill's System Tonic can bring comfort, cheer and good health. Thousands already have been cured, for System Tonic strengthens the stomach, cures constipation, enriches the blood, with iron, feeds the nerves with phosphorus and is withal a safe, economical and pleasant to take restoration to health, strength and consequent beauty. Three weeks' treatment in each 50c. box, 6 boxes for $2.50. Get it from your druggist, or sent postpaid by The Merrill Medical Co., Merrill Building, Toronto.

season in this vicinity has just been reported.

Mr. John Pettifer met with the misfortune of sending a rifle bullet through one of his arms. Dr. J. Adams has attended the injured limb. Oswald Koellner, who has been employed near Renfrew, has arrived home with a sore leg, having cut one of his knees with an axe.

Palen, John and Wm. J. Thompson, of Slate Falls Settlement, who went to the North West with the first harvesters excursion have arrived home again.

Mr. H. D. Bryan, of Rochester, N. Y., is favoring friends and relatives here with a visit.

Mr. Henry Crankshaw sold his 100 acre farm on Pumpkin Street to Mr. J. Asselstine who has already taken possession of and moved on his newly acquired estate.

FREE IF IT FAILS.

Your Money Back if You are not Satisfied With the Medicine; We Recommend.

We are so positive that our remedy will permanently relieve constipation, no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish the medicine at our expense should it fail to produce satisfactory results.

It is worse than useless to attempt to cure constipation with cathartic drugs. Laxatives or cathartics do much harm. They cause a reaction, irritate, and weaken the bowels and tend to make constipation more chronic. Besides, their use becomes a habit that is dangerous.

Constipation is caused by a weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine or descending colon. To expect permanent relief you must therefore tone up and strengthen these organs and restore them to healthier activity.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our recommendation. They are exceedingly pleasant to take, being eaten like candy, and are ideal for children, delicate persons, and old folks as well as for the robust. They act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels. They apparently have a neutral action on other associate organs or glands. They do not purge, cause excessive looseness, nor create any inconvenience whatever. They may be taken at any time, day or night. They will positively relieve chronic or habitual constipation, if not of surgical variety, and the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments, if taken with regularity for a reasonable length of time. 12 tablets, 10 cents; 36 tablets, 25 cents; 80 tablets, 50 cents. Sold in Napanee only at our store—The Rexall Store—T. B. Wallace, Druggist.

Hennequin's Infant Tablets

Save Babies' Lives. For Babies and Small Children. (Made in France.)

Dr. Hennequin's Infant Tablets saved our little girl's life. Three doctors said she could not live. The Tablets cured her.—Mr. E. R. McBRIDE, Napanee, Ont.

My baby was so weak from sickness that he could hardly walk. We thought he would die. We could find nothing to help him. I was given a sample package of three Hennequin Tablets; we used them; I saw a change at once. We secured the Tablets and our baby improved every day, and is now a bright, fat, good natured boy; you could not believe he was the same child. They certainly cured my baby and saved his life. I believe them to be the best medicine ever sold for babies. Mothers if your babies are not well take my advice and try these Tablets.—MRS. JAMES RIDDLE, Barrydale, Ont.

We have hundreds of such letters. If the Tablets were not what you need we would not offer to give them away and prepay them. If your baby is not well send for trial package. Hennequin Tablets have the letter "H" stamped upon them—this is your guarantee. All dealers, 25c per package, or 5 for $1.00 sent postpaid to any address.

THE LAND FOR THE PEOPLE WHAT WE PAY FOR HUSTLE AULD SCOTIA'S LIFE BLOOD

ENGLISH LANDLORDS SELL- 8,000 PERSONS KILLED, OVER ING THEIR HOLDINGS. 27,000 INJURED.

The Disappearance of Feudal Aristocracy May Follow This Change.

One of the most notable and lasting effects of the French revolution was the transfer of the ownership of the land of France from the feudal aristocracy to the people. In England this process has been going on peacefully and almost unnoticed during the last twelve months at a rate which, if continued much longer, will accomplish as great a change in the ownership of the land of England as the revolution did in that of France, writes a London correspondent.

There are several reasons for this change. Enemies of the present government say that the owners of land feel that they are no longer safe, and that they have been forced to sell by the new policy taxing land. As far as the amount of the tax is concerned this is absurd, but there is no doubt that the fear of heavier taxation, now that the principle has been established, has had some effect. Far greater however, has been the influence of the rising price of land, which strangely enough is due both to what the government is doing and what the opposition is expected to do when it returns to power. The government policy has been to encourage the resettlement of small holders on the land and it has even authorized county councils to buy land and resell or rent it to occupying tenants. This increased demand, added to a private movement, has stiffened prices. Then agriculturists generally are looking for a great revival of farming in England, so land is acquiring a prospective value that it didn't have before. How great the advance is, is shown by the case of a district in the Cotswold hills in Gloucestershire where stony, barren land that was bought for $60 an acre fifteen years ago is fetching $125 an acre now and there is mighty little of it to be got at that.

"BACK TO THE SOIL"

All these influences are making land sales a good thing for the landlords. They are getting hard cash for their estates which after all are a good deal of trouble and don't return a big percentage on the money. Many of them are investing in stocks and bonds and some are buying cheap land in Canada and South Africa.

Among the notable land sales of the last year was that of the Duke of Bedford's Devonshire estate which realized $2,500,000. Most of the land was bought by the tenants. The Duke of Sutherland, who is buying up thousands of acres in Canada, sold 1,380 acres at Trentham in Staffordshire for about $125,000, and Viscount Clifden has unloaded 2,030 acres in Oxfordshire for $210,000, an estate in Cornwall for $65,000 and one in Cambridgeshire for $235,000. Another big sale was that of Lord Londesborough's estates in Yorkshire which netted about $640,000.

Heavy Death Toll the Cost of Too Much Speed—Better Laws Needed.

We take pride in the wealth of our natural resources, our general development, the enterprise of our people, and the extent of their prosperity. We boast of our time saving methods, rapidity of action and of our American hustle, says the Monetary Times. We observe John Bull plodding along slowly, apparently doing business in double the time it takes us to do it. In short, we are speedier and we are proud to be first-class exponents of that North American art, hustle. What price do we pay for the boast? Here, at a glance is a section of the bill of cost.

In four years killed by: Steam railways, 2,049 persons; electric railways, 301; industrial accidents, 5,296; fires, 1,072; total, 8,718.

Injured by steam railways, 7,344; electric railways, 8,296; industrial accidents, 10,444; fires (estimated) 1,908; total 27,992.

45,428 IN FOUR YEARS.

In the past four years there have been killed an injured in Canada 45,428 persons on our railways, by industrial accidents, and by fires. This is at the rate of 11,357 per annum. In other words, every day during that period six persons have been killed and 19 injured, about one killed or injured every hour of the twenty-four. This appalling record too, applies to only the few cases mentioned. If statistics could be obtained of all fatalities and injuries in the Dominion, the bill of cost would have a still more serious appearance.

CAUSED BY CARELESSNESS.

Many, if not the majority of these accidents, can be traced to carelessness or selfishness. The desire to achieve big results in the shortest possible time at the expense of efficiency is a national trait which the country may well take immediate steps to obliterate. The evil of dollar and dividend hunting, regardless of destruction in its wake is a menace to Canada's progress and credit.

The writer heard an engineer admit that a certain structure which had been criticized "might fall in three years' time," with possibly serious loss of life. Railroad contractors were laying new steel recently at a record-breaking pace, while a big crack in the concrete abutment of a bridge was allowed to wait, despite the fact that work trains used the bridge daily. Carelessness with live wires, reckless driving of automobiles—in a thousand ways we violate the first principles of a civilized community.

BETTER LAWS NEEDED.

The reasons for the existence of such conditions are due largely to individual, corporate and legislative carelessness. We need better laws for the protection of life and property, and the strict enforcement of such laws. If the Imperial Board of Trade, for instance, had

BEING DRAINED BY EMIGRATION TO THE WEST.

Building Homes in New Countries—The Old Folks Are Left Lonely.

Scotland is being drained of her life's blood. In the Highlands and the Lowlands the old people are being left in loneliness, and by their hearthsides they are thinking wistfully of the bairns who once played around them. There is silence now in many Scottish homes. The footsteps of the young folk no longer clatter up from the village street or crush the scent out of the purple heather on the hillsides. The bairns have grown up into tall men and women, and they have listened to the voice which is calling away the sturdiest sons and the tallest lasses of Scotland. They have followed the call and have gone to build new homes in the Far West, while the old folk sit with clasped hands, hugging remembrance, which is a cold and ghostly thing.

HELP TO BUILD EMPIRE.

For hundreds of years Scotland has sent out her sons in search of fortune. Too barren is the soil to nourish those who have ambition. Never has there been elbow room enough for Scots who have the spirit of adventure. Wherever, in the old days, there was a crown to defend, a chivalrous course or a nation in arms, the Scot might be found among the men-at-arms or in the King's bodyguard or by the side of a man fighting for a throne and kingdom. They trooped over the border southward to London, and in spite of their broad Scots speech and the racial hostility of the English they helped to build up the trade of the city and the empire. They followed the flag and carried the flag to far colonies, as pioneers of exploration, as farmers, as backwoodsmen and ranchmen. In Australia and New Zealand and South Africa and Canada they kept their Scottish habits and Scottish speech and Scottish character, and scattered the Empire with their homesteads, and watered it with their blood, and stiffened its backbone.

So this Scottish emigration is not a new tale. It goes back to the unfolding of the modern world. Yet the tale now has reached a new and startling chapter. For during the past few years this tide of emigration from Scotland has swelled and broadened into a great, rushing, impetuous torrent. The Sons of Scotland are leaving their native soil not singly, but in battalions. The new census returns reveal a desolated country with deserted villages and abandoned parishes. Even in the towns the artisans are leaving their factories and besieging the emigration offices for cheap passages to Canada.

THE ANGLER'S PASSION

Disciple of Izaak Walton, Told of His Experiences.

The lure of the woods and streams has been caught and happily embodied in certain chapters in "Log of the North Shore Club"—a story of "Paddle and Portage on the Hundred Trout Rivers of Lake Superior." In the following passage the reader sees the transformation of the ordinary citizen and man of business into a disciple of Izaak Walton, lost to all sense of the importance of anything but fishing.

I knew that we must be getting pretty close to the rapids—the roar told us that. Fred parted the bushes, and began capering on the log. There was justification for the capering.

At our feet was a deep, shadowy pool with a little private waterfall of its own. It was a sort of quiet side street to the main thoroughfare out there. The trees canopied it.

Fred clung with one arm to a tree trunk, and dropped his three flies into those mysterious waters. That is, he would have dropped them if the trout hadn't jumped and grabbed the flies before they reached the water.

"Oh, my boy!" said Fred, with repressed emotion. "Here I shall settle down to a contented and tranquil old age."

But we did not settle down. That's the restless ambition of a trout fisherman. When he hooks his first pound trout, he's sure that life holds no other work. After the third pound trout, he wonders if there isn't a pound-and-a-half trout in the next pool. His first two-pounder fires the ambition to make it four.

Finally ambition—or greed—had driven us right out into the middle of the rapids, with such a din all about us that we had to scream into each other's ears. There was a sort of granite backbone through the center of that mad water, and we fished from that, casting sometimes over into the torrent on the far side, sometimes over the brink of a precipice.

Jim—joined us—to see why we were delaying the departure of the expedition. He came to chasten and to hurry us. He took just one cast, and then was lost to all sense of duty to the flight of time.

His lordship followed Jim. He came to tell us—what Jim, some hours before, had come to tell us—that our thoughtless stop was delaying the departure of the expedition. He was just as indignant and logical and right in his contention as Jim had been.

We pressed a rod into his lordship's hand. Two hours later we had to lay violent hands upon him because this time George had come to look for us, and it was getting dark.

My final departure from the college campus one June night a considerable number of years ago was no more reluctant than my departure from that wild, trout-surrounded rock, the center of the Cat Portage Rapids.

We tell of it now in whispers when we meet. And I—I brazenly declare it—I dream of it, particularly when the big city has been grinding me with unusual brutality, and brain and body are praying memory to bring a little relief.

Oxfordshire for £210,000, an estate in Cornwall for $65,000 and one in Cambridgeshire for $235,000. Another big sale was that of Lord Londesborough's estates in Yorkshire which netted about $640,000, while Lord Lansdowne got over $17,000 for 1,050 acres in Wiltshire.

MORE TO COME.

So far no figures are available as to the total sales this year, but they will run into many millions of dollars and there are lots more to come. Any enterprising foreigner who wants to buy up England has a good chance to do so now, but he will have to reckon on Lloyd George's taxes which are more likely to grow than to decrease.

An interesting side issue of this change in the ownership of land is the effect it will have on the English aristocracy. Until now it has been almost exclusively a territorial and feudal one. A peer without land was almost unthinkable and newly created business peers always made haste to buy land and so acquire definite standing in their new caste. Land, too, was regarded as a sort of insurance against changing fortunes. It was tangible property and under the law of entail it was inalienable. A spendthrift son might run through the income, and get into debt, but the land remained. Now it will be easier to dissipate the ancestral fortune and ambitious American mammas who want titled sons-in-law may soon find a slump in prices.

INVENTOR KEEPS HIS SECRET

Austrian Government's Large Offer for it Refused.

At the Paris Exposition in 1900 there was exhibited an assortment of marquetry work of great intricacy of design and beauty of finish, but at prices so low as to cast reflection upon its genuineness. Many of the pieces were of duplicate pattern.

Here is another industrial secret of considerable value that doubtless is destined to go to the grave with its discoverer, if it has not already done so, says Cassier's Magazine. No amount of examination, no matter how searching, sufficed to reveal the manner in which the designs of table tops were duplicated with such marvellous accuracy.

That much the inventor, an Austrian, was willing to divulge. The pattern, instead of being made singly of the thickness requisite for the piece it was intended to ornament, such as a table top, was built up of pieces two or three feet long, from which sections were then sawed off. How this composite structure was held together was quite another matter.

Interest in the invention reached a point where the Austrian Government offered its discoverer a small fortune on condition that his secret be deposited sealed in the royal vaults in order that it might be known after his death. He was to have the sole right of manufacture as long as he lived, the secret not to be revealed until after his death, but he preferred to keep it locked up in his own head.

The love that survives six months of married life may be the genuine article.

individual, corporate and legislative carelessness. We need better laws for the protection of life and property, and the strict enforcement of such laws. If the Imperial Board of Trade, for instance, had to deal with the question of our railroad fatalities, as they do in Great Britain, their action for reform would be drastic enough to startle us in no slight degree. We can therefore afford to emulate John Bull in his thoroughness of work and his regard for life. Ultimately his results are better, safer and more durable than ours. American hustle takes the vitality out of the nation and in more senses than one.

THREE BILLION LETTERS.

Some Big Figures From World's Biggest City.

The British postmaster general was busier than ever last year. In his report for the twelve months ending March 31, he gives the following figures of postal deliveries: Letters, 3,047,500,000; postcards, 871,400,000; halfpenny packets, 1,044,100,000; newspapers, 196,300,000; parcels, 121,800,000. Total, 5,281,100,000.

The enormous increase in the number of halfpenny packets (circulars, etc.) is attributed to the December general election and to favorable trade conditions.

About 34,419,000 packets were never delivered. Half the number were halfpenny packets and represent election literature and trade circulars that were wasted.

Public carelessness is illustrated by the fact that 467,000 unaddressed letters and loose articles were found in the post. The most careless person, perhaps, was one who deposited a letter of credit for $4,500 in a pillar box.

The only department of the post-office's work that shows a decline is the telegraphs. Only 86,707,000 telegrams were sent, which compares with 86,884,000 in the previous year. The decline would have been greater still but for the general election, which increased the press traffic to the central telegraph office by over 1,000,000 words in a fortnight.

The telegraph service suffers from the growing popularity of the telephone. Telephone calls in London increased from 70,000,000 to 85,500,000, and conversation over inland trunk lines from 20,566,318 to 20,100,028.

THE DEATH PAIN.

"Speaking generally," says a well known surgeon, "the death-agony is very rarely attended by pain, because the system is always prepared for death by a weakening of the vital forces, by the circulation of impure blood through the brain, and by the obtunding of the nerves. Of course, some people have more pain than others, and this is very largely determined by temperament. A nervous man—all other things being equal—suffers more pain than a man who has enjoyed robust health, because the nervous man's sensibilities are stronger, but the pain of death is more in the anticipation of it than in the reality. Men of education face death with greater fortitude than men who are not educated. Women are almost always sicker than men. They endure pain much better."

There are amazing figures which will strike sharp arrows into the hearts of Scotsmen who have pride in their country's history had a love for its soil. In ten years a quarter of a million people have been drained from a population of five millions. Canada alone absorbs Scotsmen at the rate of 17,000 a year, and this year will see a large increase above this figure. Even in East Lothian, the most prosperous and fertile province in Scotland, there are decreases in depopulation in half the towns and villages. In more barren districts depopulation has been more swift and more tragic. It is true to say that only the old people and the infirm and the very poor have been left behind in villages which ten twenty years ago were full of busy life and lusty manhood.

The voice of the Canadian advertiser calls loudly in the ears of Scottish people. He goes everywhere, pasting his richly colored pictures of the Golden West upon every hoarding. He plucks the artisan by the sleeve, and says, "Canada and a rich life are waiting for you." He leans over the gate of the peasant-farmer and says, "Why scratch and scrape at barren soil? Come away to the fat lands of the Far West."

CANADA SECOND SCOTLAND.

By young and active and ambitious men these flaming pictures, this incessant voice, cannot be ignored. They gaze across the purple moon, and give a heavy sigh, for they are loath to leave old Scotland; but one day they walk round to the shipping office, and at last they say good bye to the mother who is too brave to bid them be stay-at-homes. So Scotland is being drained of its life blood, and Canada welcomes with wide embracing arms the men whom she needs so much, the men of her future greatness, the men who will fill up her great gaps of loneliness with the industry and the solid character and the strong, brave spirit of the Scottish race.

Canada already is a transplanted Scotland. It is the Scotland of the American continent. Its map is strewn with Scottish place-names. The pioneers and settlers have given to the mountain passes the name of Highland glens, and in the great farmsteads of the West, in its great apple orchards, on its city offices, men speak in the tongue of Aberdeen, of Glasgow, of the Highlands and Lowlands. They have gone away from the old soil, but always these exiles remember the country of their birth or of their forefathers with an enduring love as deep as that of the Irishman for the Emerald Isle, deeper, perhaps, than the English colonist for the Mother Country.

THE SUPREME TEST.

"There never was Amos's equal for up-an'-down good nature," said Mrs. Clifford, in speaking of her deceased husband to the new boarder. "My son Joe always said pa was more patient than Job."

"I tell you," she continued, "you can figure for yourself how patient Amos was by this. Our old horse, Dandy, would get the rein under his tail, an' keep it there off 'n' on for ten mile without Amos's getting mad."

AN EXPENSIVE SLIP.

A well dressed man was hurrying along the Rue de Passy, Paris, when he slipped, and falling forward dashed his elbow through the window of a wine shop, writes the Paris correspondent of the London Standard. The proprietor rushed out to claim the price of his window and a large crowd gathered to see fair play. The man who had broken the window protested that he had no money. "Search him!" shouted some one in the crowd. There were no policemen about, so the wine shop keeper and a few friends took the law into their own hands, searched the man's pockets and found a £20 note. The crowd advised the wine shop keeper to pay himself well for his broken window. He took £2 to pay for his broken glass, and the unpopular man who had broken it went away with a torn coat and six shillings. The £20 note was a forgery.

PIG VS. PANTHER

SMALL CREATURES THAT MAY LARGE ONES.

Man Paid With Its Life For Its Foolishness in Attacking a Porcupine.

Someone has called the porcupine the biggest self-advertiser in the woods. It is perfectly true. A bumptious creature does not exist. Where other animals creep so silently through the jungle that not even a rustle is heard nor the crack of a dry twig, the porcupine stamps along, grunting as it goes, and rattling its quilled tail as though it owned the country.

Even in the depths of winter or the desolation of a long drought it is the rarest event for other animals to attempt to kill and eat the porcupine, and when they do they seldom, if ever, succeed. For the quills of the porcupine are not only extremely hard and sharp, but they have the property of coming away easily from the hide of their owner. Being slightly barbed, they work deep into the flesh of the animal that has been foolish enough to attack the porcupine, and a well-known sportsman gives an instance of a lion paying with its life for its foolishness in attacking a porcupine. One of the quills worked into the brain and killed it.

There is another case of a lioness losing her eyesight in similar fashion, and several of leopards and panthers being killed by cruelly-sharp quills.

UNITED THEY STAND.

The small wild pig of Central America, which is known as the peccary, cares as little for enemies bigger than himself as does the porcupine. No panther, nor even the huge brown or cinnamon bear, dares to attack the peccary.

The peccary relies not on quills, but on the power of co-operation. If one member of a drove is attacked, the rest instantly combine and go for the attacker. It does not matter if a dozen are killed. The pack never lets go until their enemy is pulled down and reduced to shreds no larger than a knuckle-bone.

Yet old trappers say that a man may sit down close by a feeding pack of peccaries and watch them all day. They will never meddle with him, so long as he does not touch them.

For pure pluck, the big weasel, known in the North West as the fisher, has no superior. It weighs about sixteen pounds—that is, the same as a good-size fox-terrier—and is provided with very powerful jaws. Once let it get a hold on any other creature, and it will no more let go than will a bulldog. There is a case on record of a fisher kept in a menagerie breaking out of its cage into the next and killing a young leopard exactly three times its own weight.

NEVER KILLED BY MAN.

Another weasel-like animal, the Indian mongoose, is not the least afraid of poisonous snakes three to four times its own weight. The mongoose is not, as many people have alleged, immune to snake poison. It owes its safety entirely to its extraordinary quickness. The strike of a snake is one of the swiftest things imaginable, but the mongoose is quicker still. The

MAORIS OF NEW ZEALAND.

The Race Originated in Northern India.

That interesting race, the Maori, has not always lived in New Zealand. There is, says a writer in Forest and Stream, excellent evidence in their own historical and genealogical records to show that they came there from other mid-Pacific islands about the twelfth century.

The Polynesian race, of which the Maoris, Hawaiians, Samoans and some other islanders are branches, has been traced back to a probable origin in northern India, and it is in no degree related to the negroid races of Australia or of the "black" islands of the Pacific. Traces of its visits to the west coast of the American continent have been found, and Charles Nelson, of Whakarewarewa, an ethnologist and philologist of remarkable attainments, who spent a year in searching the globe for evidences of the origin and wanderings of the Maoris, declares that he has found in the Smithsonian Institution evidence that points to their penetration even to the Rocky Mountain region or to contact with the race that peopled this continent.

Certain it is that the old Maoris were bold and adventurous navigators, and had sailed the south seas in their canoes centuries before the first European crossed the Atlantic. One of the first Maori canoes to reach New Zealand was the Arawa. One of the clans or tribes takes its name from that craft, and preserve in oral history the names of the captain and crew. The Arawa is the Mayflower of Maori history; the descendants of the people who constituted her crew and passengers are the blue bloods of the race.

Without compass or knowledge of astronomy, how did these hardy sailors find their way across the vast waste of water in vessels fashioned from the hollowed trunk of trees? That is a question that has puzzled and amazed all who have sought to learn the origin of the Maoris, and who have traced their course from India and the Malay Archipelago through Polynesia to New Zealand. True, their canoes were stanch and seaworthy craft, some of them eighty to one hundred feet in length; and two of them, lashed together in the manner of a catamaran, could weather the fiercest storms of the Indian Ocean and carry provisions for long voyages. It is known that the Maoris provisioned their canoes chiefly with a tuber resembling the sweet potato, which they brought to New Zealand, and that they carried water in bamboo logs that were laid in the bottom of the canoe and thus served as ballast. But how did they find their way, and what definite purpose did they have when they put to sea and pushed hardily into the vast unknown?

A very interesting theory is advanced by Richard Henry, the government caretaker on Resolution Island, a recently established bird sanctuary in the Pacific. He believes that the seal fishery, which in ancient times extended all over the South Pacific, led these Polynesian mariners from island to island, from breeding-place to breeding-place, till the flying seals and the steadily blowing tradewinds carried a tribe of them to New

WHEN WAR CLOUDS BURST BRITISH OIL FOR THE EMPIRE

MAY BREAK WITH HARDLY A MOMENT'S WARNING.

"Strike Before the Enemy is Ready" Appears to Be the Rule Now-a-days.

The surprising suddenness with which war broke out between Italy and Turkey marks a record in the history of warfare. One day hardly any body outside the two countries concerned knew that there was any friction between Italy and Turkey at all. The next, a 24-hours' ultimatum was presented; a few hours after its expiry shots had been fired in battle.

War hardly ever comes twice in just the same way. During the recent bitterness between France and Germany the circumstances were very different from those which ended 40 years ago in the great Franco-Prussian war. France was then interested in the succession to the throne of Spain, and forbade Germany to interfere.

Germany refused to submit to this dictation, and all France was jubilant at the thought of a war. Crowds streamed through Paris shouting; "To Berlin! To Berlin!" Public men and newspapers boasted that the French army was "ready, forty times ready, ready to the last gaiter-button!" But events showed that it was not, but in a bad state of disorganization.

INSULTED BY KAISER.

It is known now that Germany was equally eager. A telegram that reached Paris saying that the French Ambassador at Berlin had been publicly insulted by the German Emperor, brought French wrath to a head. This telegram is now believed to have been sent (under another name) by the great German Minister Bismarck. It served its purpose, and both armies rushed to the frontier.

In the negotiations preceding the Boer War Britain was badly outmanoeuvred. Britain's demands that "out-landers" should receive fair treatment in the Transvaal had been fruitless. The Government then started leisurely drawing up a final State paper, all the time pouring troops into South Africa.

This State paper would have been followed by an ultimatum when all preparations were made. But the Transvaal knew that every day's delay was against her. Quickly she played the card Britain had been meaning to play, and sent an ultimatum demanding that within 48 hours an undertaking should be given to withdraw all recent reinforcements, whether in South Africa or still on the sea. Britain promptly refused, and the Boers swooped down into Natal, where the British troops were even, yet badly outnumbered.

TIME TO GAIN TIME

In the Russo-Japanese war Russia played for delay in a somewhat similar fashion. A Japanese final demand went without answer for weeks, while troops were streaming east. She kept always promising an early answer, and filling the European press with re-

UNTAPPED FIELDS IN NEW ZEALAND AND CANADA.

Stores of Liquid Wealth Equal to Any Oil-producing Countries in the World.

Every one has heard of Mr. Rockefeller's millions and of the oilfields in some parts of Europe, but few have any idea that reservoirs of liquid wealth lie untapped within the borders of the British Empire.

To-day England buys her oil from the foreigner, but there is no reason, in the opinion of Mr. J. D. Henry, one of the best-informed oil experts, why British Empire wells should not supply the rapidly growing demands of British oil-users, including the navy, with its oil fuel ships.

"I believe there is more oil fuel in British possessions and dependencies," Mr. Henry writes in a book which he has just published, "that there is in some of the greatest producing fields in Europe."

FIELDS OF NEW ZEALAND.

This is a statement which will cause astonishment to those who have not Mr. Henry's knowledge and his book—"Oil Fields of New Zealand"—will awaken the interest of those who have hitherto been unaware of the fact that New Zealand is already an oil-producing country.

In the North West of Canada, also oil exploration work has been begun this summer, and operations in New Brunswick leave no doubt. Mr. Henry believes that in this region of the Dominion, production on a commercial scale will be affected.

GREAT INDUSTRY.

Thus in Australasia and in Canada there is a prospect of a great oil industry being built up, yet Mr. Henry emphasizes the fact that "nothing has occurred to secure for it more than a few spasmodic rises in public favor."

"There is a reason for this," Mr. Henry says, in explanation of the lack of appreciation of the Empire's oil resources, and he gives the reason in plain words. "It is the disaster which has befallen speculators in foreign oil concerns."

He mentions an instance in which a London company plunged into a "wilderness called an oilfield" in America, in which "a million of capital gave the shareholders nothing better than two dry holes." "We have a shameful record of mistakes in foreign oilfields," he adds. "In many fields we seem to have only invested money to lose it."

AN EMPIRE PROPOSITION.

"We can only make a success of this colonial oil business," he states, "if new concerns operate on the lines which have made outstanding successes of scores of foreign companies, working 'at their own centres of industry.'"

Mr. Henry's book tells the story of the New Zealand oil fields, with pictures of the chief wells.

It is as an Empire proposition that the subject appeals to his sympathies. He points out that our have been alleged, immune to snake-bite. It owes its safety entirely to its extraordinary quickness. The strike of a snake is one of the swiftest things imaginable, but the mongoose is quicker still. The second the snake has struck, master mongoose has it by the neck, and all it over.

Speaking of snakes, the king snake, which is comparatively small, will kill the largest rattler. The King snake is not only amazingly rapid in its movements, but has more strength and constricting power to the square inch than any other of its tribe. Once it gets its coils around the rattler, it is all up with the latter, and for this reason the king snake is never killed by man.

INDIANS' BRIDGE.

Curious Structure Built Over a British Columbia River.

Some interesting examples of Indian ingenuity are afforded on the River Skeena and its tributaries in north British Columbia. These waterways in their upper reaches flow very swiftly and for the most part through deep ravines. As it is impossible for the Indians to cross them by means of canoes they have resorted to bridging, says the Scientific American.

Their bridges are interesting structures from the engineering point of view, inasmuch as the cantilever principle is adopted. A bridge of this design spans the Bulkeley River where it is about 120 feet wide, and the height from the bridge to water level is about eighty feet.

It is built of wooden logs, the legs of the structure being formed of single stout logs varying from sixty to eighty feet in length. The task of lowering them into position must have demanded considerable ingenuity on the part of the builders.

They are buried about fifteen feet at their lower ends and anchored by the super-imposition of masses of large rock rolled and carried to the site. The longitudinal members of the shore spans are similarly buried in the ground and lashed to the ends of the diagonal logs.

These main members, corresponding to deck girders, are about 120 feet in length, and to either end the A members of the superstructure are lashed. Elaborate cross bracing is resorted to in order to secure greater strength.

When the bridge was first erected the different members were simply secured together by willow thongs, but when the British Columbian Government erected a more substantial suspension bridge lower down the river the Indians assembled and followed the white man's operations with great interest. They observed how the thick wire cables were slung and anchored, and accordingly decided to introduce wire into their own structure. They procured the material for this purpose from wherever they could and introduced it in a most fantastic manner. Also when the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway engineers commenced working on their track near by the Indians procured odds and ends, such as bolts and spikes, from them for introduction in their bridges, so that now it is a strange looking piece of work, though the fundamental cantilever lines are still distinct.

the South Pacific, tied these Polynesian mariners from island to island, from breeding-place to breeding-place, till the flying seals and the steadily blowing tradewinds carried a tribe of them to New Zealand, in which pleasant land they settled, thrived and multiplied.

The theory is plausible, for it is based upon conditions that are known to have existed in the past, and supplies an intelligible motive for migration across the great ocean.

SOME CURIOUS DRINKS.

Pick Me Up Indulged in by Workmen of Certain Trades.

Some men boast of knowing the taste of every drink except water. They do not. One tippie they have never sampled it "acorn cup," or "the liquor," the stuff in which hides are tanned into leather, says London Tit-Bits.

Made from oak bark and acorns and acorn cups, it has a sharp, bitter taste that is anything but agreeable to the ordinary palate; but the men engaged in some tanneries habitually drink it in small quantities—a wineglassful at a time is the limit—as a pick me up.

Another drink unknown to the general tippler is a favorite among ironstone workers. It is a natural product of a very curious kind. In the best sort of such stone are found hollow pieces, inside of which is about a pint of mush, a cold liquor with a sweet, sharp taste, and either red or white in color. Strangers seldom want more than one sip of mush, but the workmen quaff it with avidity.

There are, too, many kinds of alcoholic products which are rarely if ever tasted outside particular trades. Methylated spirit is drunk not only by furniture polishers but by hatters and others who use it in their work, and it seems impossible to make it so vile that they cannot swallow it.

A man engaged in one of the shops of a London warehouse was found to be drinking considerable quantities of methylated spirit, whereupon the remainder of the stock was dosed with that noisome drug—arsenite, which, it was thought, would make the stuff undrinkable. But the spirit actually disappeared faster than ever!

In the same way some of the alcohol used in silent works is drunk by those who have the handling of it, and some men engaged at drug warehouse get into the dangerous habit of taking "nips" of essences and the like. Not long ago a man employed by a large firm of wholesale chemists was seriously ill through long indulgence in the practice.

Braggs—You never know what you can do till you try. Wags—That's wrong. You never know what you can do till you succeed. Braggs—Well, perhaps that's better. Wags—And then you're wrong. You never know what you can do when you succeed. You only know what you have been able to do.

Mrs. Oldtimer—When we were in Egypt we visited the pyramids. They were just covered with hieroglyphics. Mrs. Newrich—Horror! Weren't you afraid that some of the ugly things would get on you?

ese final demand went without answer for weeks, while troops were streaming east. She kept always promising an early answer, and filling the European press with reports that everything would be quite all right.

At last Japan refused to give further time, and broke off negotiations. Then Russia said she had sent off her reply the day before! But it was too late, and the Japanese fleet put to sea.

In the Spanish-American war a recent discovery has shown the final reason for the bloodshed was founded on a tragic mistake. The battleship Maine, when lying at the mouth of Havana harbor, guarding American interests there, exploded.

Everybody thought Spain had done the deed, and an American Court of Inquiry came to that conclusion. War was obviously inevitable. Congress voted ten millions for a war chest, and authorized the President to use the national forces to clear Spain out of Cuba. Next day each Government courteously handed each other's ambassador his passports.

But nowadays this polite preliminary is usually left till later. The side that sees its chance takes it, and lets the polite preliminaries wait.

JAPAN'S RICH MEN.

Only 1,018 Individuals With a Fortune of $250,000 or More.

The Tokio Jiji has compiled a list of Japanese men of wealth at home and abroad and finds that there are only 1,018 who possess $250,000 or more. But if the Japanese are generally poor, some of them at least are getting rich rapidly, for ten years ago there was only 441 in the $250,000 or more class.

In that space of time the number of the wealthy has increased by 557 or more than doubled. The population of Japan, including Formosa, exceeds 51,000,000. According to the list the wealthiest Japanese outside of Japan are Shinzaburo Ban of Portland, Me.; Takanoshin Domoto of San Francisco, Masajiro Furuya of Seattle, each of whom is a grocer; Kinji Ushijima, a planter, of San Francisco; Dr. Jokichi Takamine, the chemist of New York, and Senjiro Wataabe of the Mitsui Bussan Kaisha of London, England.

Comparing the wealth of these men with the fortunes of the very rich of other countries one is sufficiently impressed with Japan's comparative poverty. The Croesus of Japan is Baron Mitsui, whose wealth is estimated as between $100,000,000 and $200,000,000, although Baron Iwasaki be considered in the same multi-millionaire class.

On an income basis fortunes such as these do not compare unfavorably with those accumulated in Europe and America, says the Oriental Review, but the 1,018 individuals have $250,000 or more present but a feeble array numerically as against the many thousands of almost any Occidental country, America and England particularly.

Crawford—Don't you believe that a man should be the architect of his own fortune? Crabshaw—That's all right; but he shouldn't build on the other fellow's lot.

Mr. Henry's book tells the story of the New Zealand oil fields, with pictures of the chief wells.

It is as an Empire proposition that the subject appeals to his sympathies. He points out that our sources of petrol—now in naval use—are foreign and he asks what is to happen in war time if our petrol supplies are cut off.

"We must hasten the time," he says, "when we shall have our supplies of oil guaranteed by our colonies and dependencies, and a home system of ordinary and reserve storage ample in capacity and protected against attack by an enemy."

LONDON POLICE THE BEST.

Chief of Police of Cleveland Awards the Palm to Them.

Fred Kohler, the "Golden Rule" Chief of Police of Cleveland, Ohio, has concluded his health trip to Europe. He visited Paris, Berlin, Vienna and other big Continental cities, and his British itinerary embraced Liverpool, Edinburgh, Belfast, Dublin, Cork and Cardiff.

"I firmly believe London has the best uniformed policemen in the world, but the detectives of America are by far the best of any I have come into contact with," he says. "A detective is born, not made, and the American detective has greater natural aptitude for the work. He is shrewder, 'cuter' and quicker to act than his kind in England or on the continent.

"The police in England and on the Continent, however, are helped in their work by the absence of all political influences that bear on the police in the States. Politics and the police in England are as widely divided as the poles. The London police handle the people better than in any other city in the world. The policeman can regulate traffic with a wave of the hand. He can clear a crowd without trouble because the English people are taught to obey the police, and the police are supported by the courts.

"In the matter of detailed police work and system I should say that Berlin is the nearest to perfection. The moment you enter Berlin you are struck by the cleanliness of the atmosphere and the appearance of the streets and the same sort of thing is found in the police system.

"I confess I was agreeably surprised by the neatness and cleanliness of the police in Ireland and the behavior of the Irish crowd during the time of the strike. At physical specimens I must come back to London. There you have the 'swellest' looking policemen in the world. And why? Because the authorities can pick and choose the best men from all parts of the British Isles. In Cleveland, only residents can become policemen in the city. I heartily approve of the English system, as there is always the danger of the local man being under local influence.

"Our policemen are much harder worked than European police. We have a very large foreign element, representing many nationalities, and that makes the trouble."

"Do you think women should propose?" asked the passe lady. "I don't know," mused the young thing. "Have you tried everything else?"

This Food-Tonic Quickly Restores Strength

After a serious illness, ordinary food should be supplemented by a strengthening tonic. For this purpose is recommended very highly. In its preparation the disagreeable flavor of the natural Cod Liver Oil is entirely removed, while its well known nourishing and tissue-building qualities are retained. Then we add Hypophosphites to build up the nerves. Extract of Wild Cherry (for the Lungs and Bronchial Tubes), and Extract of Malt (a food itself) which aids in the assimilation of other foods.

NA-DRU-CO Tasteless Cod Liver Oil Compound

FOR EVERY AILMENT THERE'S A NA-DRU-CO SPECIFIC BEARING THIS TRADE MARK. SEE THAT YOU GET IT.

CLOSE QUARTERS ;

OR, THE HOUSE IN THE RUE BARBETTE

CHAPTER VI.—(Cont'd)

He would have quitted the saloon, but Captain Gaultier laughed—

"Hold on a bit; it is my turn now. Suppose I try to pump you."

A giant wave took hold of the vessel and shook her violently, and Brett, though an average amateur sailor, felt that the saloon was no place for him.

"Between you and the ship, Captain Gaultier," he said, "the success of the operation would be certain. I have secured a quiet corner of the deck. If you wish for further talk we must adjourn there."

The transit was effected without incident, much to Brett's relief. After a minute or two he felt that a cigar was possible. He turned to his companion with a quiet observation—

"The vessel has failed. You can start now."

"Well," said Gaultier, "tell me what is the mystery attaching to Talbot's movements. I only heard the vaguest of rumors in the Department, but something very terrible appears to have happened, and, indeed, I heartily wished I had kept my mouth shut concerning the supposed meeting with him last night, as the affair was no business of mine. Moreover, you have somewhat shaken my belief in your identity, although I can hardly tell you why that should be so."

Brett paused to make sure that no one would overhear him, and in the fewest possible words, he poured the tale into the other's wondering ear. When he had finished, Gaultier remained silent a few minutes.

Already the clear radiance of the session. He was French, aggressively so. The poor man had been wretchedly ill from the moment he left Dover until the vessel was tied to her berth in the harbor at Calais. He paid not the least attention to the newcomers, being apparently absorbed in contemplation of his own misery. The two Englishmen, though experienced travellers, were sufficiently insular to resent the presence of the stranger, whom Brett resolved to put to the language test forthwith.

"It is very cold in here," he said. "Shall I turn on the hot air?"

The Frenchman seemed to understand that he was addressed. He looked up with a shivering smile and explained that he only booked one seat. The remainder of the compartment was at their disposal. He was evidently guiltless of acquaintance with the English tongue, but Brett did not like his appearance.

Though well-dressed and well-spoken he was a nondescript individual, and the flash of his dark eyes was not reassuring. Yet the man was so ill that Brett forthwith dismissed him from his thoughts, though he took care to occupy the centre seat himself, thus placing Captain Gaultier on the other side of the carriage. After a visit from the ticket examiner, the Frenchman disposed himself for a nap and the train started.

Captain Gaultier by this time had made up his mind as to the information he felt he could give his new acquaintance.

"It is very odd," he said, "that those diamonds should disappear just at the moment when there is every sign of unrest in Turkey. You know, of course, the manner of the last Sultan's death?"

Brett nodded.

"And you have heard, no doubt,

way they passed the dreary journey to Paris pleasantly enough.

At the Gare du Nord, the Frenchman, who seemed to be thoroughly revived by the air of his beloved Paris, hurried out simultaneously with themselves. He had no difficulty in hearing Brett's directions to a cabman. Gaultier entered another vehicle.

Brett was the first away from the station. He fancied he saw his French travelling companion hastily whisper something to a lounge near the exit, so he suddenly pulled up his voiture, gave the driver a two-franc piece and told him to go to the Grand Hotel and there await his arrival. The cab had halted for the moment in the Rue Lafayette, at the corner of the Place Valenciennes, and the cabman, recognizing that his fare was an Englishman and consequently mad, drove off immediately in obedience to orders.

Though nearly six o'clock in the morning, it was quite dark, but as Brett walked rapidly back towards the station he had no difficulty in picking out Gaultier, who occupied an open vehicle. Some little distance behind came another, and herein the barrister thought he recognized the man to whom the Frenchman in the train had spoken. By this time many other cabs were dashing out of the station-yard, so Brett took the chance that he might be hopelessly wrong.

He hailed a third vehicle and told the driver to follow the other two, which were now some distance down the Rue Lafayette. Not until the three cabs had crossed the Place de l'Opera and passed the Madeleine could Brett be certain that the occupant of the second was following his friend Gaultier. Then he chuckled to himself, for this was surely a rare stroke of luck.

Quickly reviewing the possibilities of the affair, he came to the conclusion that the travelling Frenchman readily understood little, if any English, but that he had caught the name of the fugitive from the Sultan's wrath and had forthwith betrayed an interest in their conversation which was, to say the least, remarkable. At the exit from the Gare du Nord the stranger had readily enough ascertained Brett's destination, but he clearly regarded it as important that Gaultier—the man who claimed Hussein-ul-Mulk as a friend—should be tracked, and had given the necessary instructions to the confederate who awaited his arrival.

Although Gaultier had not said as much, Brett guessed that his destination was the British Embassy in the Rue du Faubourg St. Honore. The route followed by the cabman led straight to that well-known locality. The Frenchman in the second cab evidently thought likewise, for, at the corner of the Rue Boissy he pulled up, and Brett was just in time to give his driver instructions to go ahead and thus avoid attracting undue notice to himself.

Gaultier turned into the Embassy, and Brett himself halted a little further on. Dismissing his coacher with a liberal fare, he walked rapidly back, and saw the spy enter into conversation with the night porter on duty. The latter personage, however, was clearly a trustworthy official, for he loudly told the other to be off and attend to his own affairs.

Then followed a most exciting and wearily traversing a corridor to gain his room. "Now I wonder if there is any connexion between Hussein-ul-Mulk and the Rue Barquette."

(To be continued.)

HE COULD NOT SLEEP AT NIGHTS

TILL HE FOUND RELIEF IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Fred. Swanson, of Saskatchewan, sends a message of cheer to those who feel the weariness and discouragement that comes from broken rest.

Macklin, Sask., Oct. 23 (Special)—Those who suffer from sleepless nights and get up in the morning feeling tired and discouraged will find renewed hope in the statement made by Fred. Swanson of this place. He could not sleep at nights. He discovered the cause. It was Kidney trouble. He discovered the cure. It is Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"Yes," Mr. Swanson says, in an interview regarding his case, "I was troubled with my Kidneys for over a year, so bad that I could not sleep at nights. After using one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills I found great relief. Four boxes removed all my pain and now I sleep well and I am as strong in my Kidneys as any man."

If the Kidneys are wrong the blood becomes clogged with impurities and natural rest is an impossibility. Strong, healthy Kidneys mean pure blood, new life all over the body and that delightful rest that is the sweetest thing in life. Dodd's Kidney Pills always make strong, healthy Kidneys.

SCOTTISH COPPER FIND.

What is described as an unusually rich mineral-bearing reef has been discovered at Castleton, on Loch Eyne, Scotland. The lode is 8 ft. in width, and, although it has not yet been assayed, has been pronounced by experienced miners to contain a large percentage of copper, as well as gold, silver, and lead. The discovery is the result of the systematised prospecting which has been going on owing to the accidental finding of the reef some months ago. The reef has been proved to over 100 ft. in depth, and is there much richer than at 60 ft.

CLEANING A SILVER PURSE.

A writer in Harper's Bazar advises: Any woman who owns a silver purse, either sterling or German, and who constantly pays the jeweler for cleaning it, in order to save gloves and light dresses, will be very glad to know that common baking soda will clean it in a few minutes. That is what most jewelers use, I have found after having paid for having mine cleaned dozens of times. Just take plenty of soda and a little water and wash between the hands or with a brush; rinse and dry—and think of the money saved.

OLD, OLD STORY.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Fashion Hints

SEEN IN PARIS SHOPS.

We are most assuredly to retain the slim, clinging draperies of the first empire.

In the tailor made waists the trimming is severe and consists mostly in mere bands and simple straps.

For fall traveling loose one piece and empire cloaks of surah, alpaca, and silk warp gloria are made by French tailors.

Side plaited ribbons, generally with colored edges, are a new and poplar trimming on dresses and sometimes on hats.

Toques and turbans in two colors are smart and may be of all cloth or felt, or combined with velvet or heavy ribbed silk.

Velveteen cords are a novelty—black and white grounds, for instance, with gray cords. Both these, too, come in plain colors.

Purple in panne velvet is likely to be extensively used for evening wraps, combined with Venetian lace, ermine, or white fox.

The revival of artificial flowers for corsage bouquet and garlands of small flowers on evening gowns is becoming a popular fad.

The fichu drapery of the bodice is being used for evening and even for afternoon wear, with the V shaped opening at the back.

Fichus are seen in every possible soft material, from chiffon to handkerchief lawn, from wash net to embroidered or allover lace.

Draped effects appear in turbans, and toques, and small hats galore. These are the most attractive in the long haired cloth and ribbed silk.

Panne velvet will be seen principally in connection with opera cloak development, for costume suits, and for the trimming of cloth or satin garments.

There is a new version of the kimono waist, which is draped in soft folds so that there seems to be no break between bodice and sleeves.

The new evening sets of scarfs and muffs are all the delicate tints of the rainbow, and have hints of ostrich in their fluffy marabou depths.

Flounces are again in fashion for walking skirts of heavy fabrics, but they are without fullness. The division at the side continues popular.

AS GOOD AS A DOCTOR IN THE HOUSE.

Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in every home where there are little ones. They are as good as a doctor; are absolutely safe and can always be relied upon to drive away any malady arising from derangements of the stomach or bowels. Concerning them Mrs. O. A. Wheeler, Northlands, Sask., says: "I have found Baby's Own Tablets an invaluable medicine. I live twenty miles from town and doctor is at hand. I consider the Tablets a real necessity in the home and shall never be without them. They have kept my baby well and have made him a bonnie

A TALK ON RHEUMATISM

Telling How to Cure This Painful Malady.

This article is for the man or woman who suffers from rheumatism who wants to be cured, not merely relieved—but actually cured. The most a rheumatic sufferer can hope for in rubbing something on the tender, aching joint, is a little relief. No lotion or liniment ever did or ever can make a cure. The rheumatic poison is rooted in the blood. Therefore, rheumatism can only be cured when this poisonous acid is driven out of the blood. That's why rubbing and liniments and outward applications are no good—they can't reach the cause in the blood. Any doctor will tell you this is true. If you want something that will go right to the root of the trouble in the blood every time take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They make new, rich blood which drives out the poisonous acid and cures rheumatism to stay cured. This is a solemn truth which has been proved in thousands of cases, and the following is a striking instance. Mrs. W. H. Elnor, Sarnia, Ont., says: "I feel it my duty to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as they completely cured me of rheumatism after I had been almost an invalid for three years. I doctored with two skilled doctors and took electric treatment, but without benefit. On going to a third doctor he recommended mineral baths as the only thing that would help me. After taking this treatment for some time I felt that I was really growing worse instead of better, and I began to think there was no cure for me and that I was doomed to be a helpless sufferer. For some months I discontinued all treatment and then I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After taking a few boxes I could notice a distinct improvement, and I continued taking the Pills for several months, when the cure was complete. That is some two years ago, and I have ever since been perfectly free from the trouble. I would, therefore, advise anyone afflicted with rheumatism to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as they certainly made a remarkable cure in my case."

These pills are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Won Fame on Its Merits.—The unbounded popularity that Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil enjoys is not attributable to any elaborate advertising, for it has not been so advertised, but is entirely due to the merits of this Oil as a medicine. In every city, town and hamlet in the country it is sought after solely because of its good qualities.

Statesmen who take their dismissal with humor are so rare that one of whom Mr. Blountelle-Burton tells, in his recent book, "The Fate of Henry of Navarre," seems to merit further commemoration. The Duc d'Epéron had fallen into disfavor with King Henry. Descending the great staircase of the Louvre, he met Richelieu ascending.

"Is there anything new taking place?" the cardinal indifferently asked. "Nothing," returned the duke, "except that, as you see, I am going down and you are going up."

PURIFIED HIS BLOOD

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Healed Mr. Wilson's Sores

When the sewers of the body—bowels, kidneys and skin ducts—get clogged up, the blood quickly becomes impure and frequently sores break out over the body. The way to heal them, as Mr. Richard Wilson, who lives near London, Ont., found, is to purify the blood. He writes:
"For some time I had been in a low, depressed condition. My appetite left me and I soon began to suffer from indigestion. Quite a number of small sores and blotches formed all over my skin. I tried medicine for the blood and used many kinds of ointments, but without satisfactory results. What was wanted was a thorough cleansing of the blood, and I looked about in vain for some medicine that would accomplish this.
At last Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills were brought to my notice, and they are one of the most wonderful medicines I have ever known. My blood was purified in a very short time, sores healed up, my indigestion vanished. They always have a place in my home and are looked upon as the family remedy."
Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills cleanse the system thoroughly. Sold by all dealers at 25c a box.

F. Chinneck has moved into his beautiful new Jewelry Store which is a credit to any city. You can have lots of light to see what you buy and at the same time be shut out from the public gaze of passers by, whom you might not wish to see you buying. Then we can take you into our private office, where everything will be kept strictly secret, a feature we are noted for. Remember he practically cleared out an immense stock at the auction and the subsequent private sale so that everything you see is brand new, latest fashions, and a fact he wishes to impress on everyone is that the quality is of the very best and sold with a positive guarantee. He has marked all his goods extremely reasonable, consistent with the quality.

Professor Grant to Lecture Here.

Perhaps there is no man in Canada who has done more to make the English people understand Canada, than Professor William Lawson Grant of Queen's University. As a Lecturer in Colonial History in the University of Oxford, he had opportunities which come to few and that he embraced those opportunities is proven by results. He and H. B. Egerton, M. A., wrote "Canadian Constitutional Development" in 1907. This work is exceptionally well done, and should be read by all students of Canadian History. Prof. Grant in the same year (1907) translated for The Champlain Society, Toronto, "The History of New France," by Mare Lescarbot, and wrote an excellent introduction for the same. This work is to be complete in three volumes. In 1905, all students were delighted with the biography of "George Munro Grant," which was written by Prof. W. L. Grant and Frederick Hamilton. Most of this work was written by Prof. Grant, and although it must have been a difficult thing for a son to write an acceptable biography of an illustrious father, the universal opinion of the critics is that Prof. Grant has been particularly successful. These works and the splendid series of articles which he is writing for Queen's Quarterly in connection with the Department of History and of Political and Economic Science, surely warrant the statement made in the opening paragraph. The people of Napanee are very fortunate in being able to hear Prof. Grant's lecture to be given in Historical Hall, on Friday, Nov. 21th.

A GIFT WITH A THOUGHT IN IT.

What other Christmas present costs so little and means so much as a subscription to The Youth's Companion—52 weeks to any Canadian subscriber for $2.00? It is a gift which benefits not only the one who receives it, but every member of the same household. With many Christmas presents the sense of novelty wears off by the week's end, but The Youth's Companion is as new and sought after the fifty-second week of the year as the first. It is elastic in its adaptability, too; for it does not matter whether the present is for a boy or a girl, young married people, sedate couples, grandparents—there never was one yet who did not set store by The Youth's Companion. You cannot make a mistake if you give The Companion—and it is only $2.00 a year now to Canadian Subscribers: On January 1, 1912, the price will be advanced to $2.25.

The one to whom you give the subscription will receive free The Companion's Calendar for 1912, lithographed in twelve colors and gold, and you, too, as giver of the subscription, will receive a copy of the Calendar.

DEAR MR. EDITOR:—

Through no fault of yours a mistake was made in last weeks issue of your valuable paper. In referring to the Temple of Fame, and the Orchestra under the leadership of Mr. W. J. Smith, I should have mentioned that Mr. W. J. Smith furnished splendid music. Now Mr. Editor, the praise should go to the one that so ably deserves it, and that is Mr. Berkley, a very competent and efficient Orchestra Leader.

made in last weeks issue of your valuable paper. In referring to the Temple of Fame, and the Orchestra under the leadership of Mr. W. J. Simpson furnished splendid music. Now Mr. Editor, the praise should go to the one that so ably deserves it, and that is Mr. Berkley, a very competent and efficient Orchestra Leader. Then another oversight, I think is the pianist, Miss Beatrice Baughan. She certainly deserves a word of praise for her excellent time in which every number was rendered, and while she may be only an amateur, she certainly could complete with a good many senior pupils, both in touch and time. Hoping this will not take up too much space.

Yours Sincerely,
One Who Was There.

MARLBANK.

Sunday passed off quietly owing to the inclemency of the weather, the different services not being largely attended.

We are pleased to say that our day school is progressing nicely under the able management of Mr. Goodwillie and Miss Crosier.

Early on Monday evening our village was thrown into considerable excitement when the news was being circulated that the Allen Hall was on fire, notwithstanding every effort possible was made to save the building, all efforts failed and in a short time the building was completely consumed. The lower part of the building was used for dwelling houses. There were three families occupying the building at the time, Mr. Brown, Mr. Alex Obleman and Mr. Charlie Whalen. Mr. Brown was fortunate in getting his furniture removed from the building, but Mr. Obleman and Mr. Whalen, being away attending a wake when the fire was discovered. When they reached home they at once broke the door in only to be driven back by the flames, losing all their furniture, bedding everything only the clothes they were wearing, together with quite a purse of money and as those are hard working men, they have the sympathy of the community. We trust the community will show their sympathy by way of recompense. Marlbank is never slack in this line.

We are pleased to say that the Cement Works is still booming under the able management of Mr. Henderson, Superintendent.

Mr. B. Hall, one of our general Merchants, a short time ago purchased a large dwelling house, formerly used by Mr. Fitzgeralds, and he has again purchased another piece of land from Mr. Geo. McFarlane and intends putting up a large store early in the spring, and as Mr. Hall is an accommodating and obliging man it will be to the interest of the public to give him a call.

We have had several weddings here of late and rumor says another in a few days.
